President Hints Compromise on Wage-Price Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Wednesday he would consider a wage-price review board to combat inflation if hearings in Congress convince him it could be done "without stifling the economy."

In a switch of tactics, Nixon softened his once-rigid opposition to the idea of a wage-price review board as a dozen Republican senators proposed a system of wage-price restraints to Capitol Hill.

Nixon reiterated his opposition to the wage-price board approach which has been urged by Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns, but indicated to newsmen he is now more open-minded about it.

He said the idea of such a board would be considered only if congressional hearings "convince me that enforcing an incomes policy could be accomplished without stifling the economy."

Shortly before Nixon held his news conference, Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said in a statement the administration, while opposing a wage-price board and the restraints it implies, now welcomes a "full-fledged debate in the Congress" over the issue.

Nixon followed that up with his statement.

The President said he would bring the power of his office to bear in an effort to see that industry and labor contract settlements "are responsible."

Even this classified as "incomes policy," which is economic jargon for the use of White House power to hold down big wage and price increases. But the wage-price board approach would imply some type of enforcement, as opposed to presidential efforts to achieve lower wage and price boosts through persuasion.

Nixon reiterated his prediction that 1971 "would be a good year for the economy" and 1972 "a very good year."

"We are making progress against inflation," the President said. But, he added, "it's going to require continued strong policies" and will need congressional aid in limiting the budget expenditures within the limit of full employment revenues.

The administration has consistently opposed wage-price control but the welcome Connally offered to consideration of the question was a new development.

Nixon tried to put to rest reports that he is at odds with Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. He said that in terms of monetary and fiscal policy Burns has been following a course "that I think is most responsible and statesmanlike."

He also said Burns had taken "a very unfair shot" from reports regarding a pay boost for him.

Nixon said both Burns and George Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget, asked not to get pay increases at this time because Nixon said, he is planning to limit salary increases for blue collar workers.

Nixon said he has asked Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson to bring to his attention every major wage-price negotiation that may extend it can be effective to see these negotiations are responsible so that the United States can continue to be competitive in the world markets.

Viet Peace Caution

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon cautioned today that his talks in China will not lead to an immediate end of the Vietnam war.

But, he said at a news conference, when he meets with Chinese leaders every "hard problem" facing the two nations and the world will be subject to discussion.

Speaking to newsmen crowded around his desk, Nixon described China as "potentially the most powerful nation in the world." He said "there cannot be world peace unless there is communication" between China and the United States.

Nixon said there are "no conditions" and "no deals" with the Communist Chinese about the subjects of discussion.

"We will discuss any point of difference that might affect the peace of the world," he said.

About 60 newsmen were summoned into the Oval Office for the unanticipated press session. Nixon, fielding questions easily, also made these points:

—Neither the Soviet Union nor Washington sees any real point in his (Nixon) making a side trip to Moscow while going to China.

—He stands by his prediction that 1971 will be "a good year" for the economy and that 1972 will be "a very good year."

—He has asked Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson to notify him of every major industry negotiation as it comes up and he will use his powers of "persuasion" to try to keep agreements within "responsible" and anti-inflationary bounds.

—He has decided against pay increases for the government's "blue collar" workers since a pay boost "would not be in the interests of fighting the inflation battle."

—The United States will maintain a policy of "complete neutrality" regarding the forthcoming elections in South Vietnam.

—The United States will boost its help for the victims of famine in East Pakistan but will not cut off its aid to the Pakistan government.

The President's planned trip to Peking and the state of the economy were the major topics at the news session. Nixon said the exact date of his trip will be fixed within the next two or three months. He said a small working party consisting of Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, a close adviser, will accompany him.

Asked whether the Chinese talks would end the Vietnam war, Nixon replied: "It is not a discussion that will lead to instant detente." Rather, he said, the two nations were set on moving from "an era of confrontation to an era of discussion."

"Our interests are very different and we both recognize this," the President said of himself and the Chinese leaders. He said "the discussions will deal with the hard problems as well as the easy ones."

As for a possible trip to Russia Nixon said it would not be in the interest of either the Soviet Union or the United States to have a "summit" in Moscow at the same time as his Peking mission. He said Soviet Foreign Secretary Andrei Gromyko agreed with him that "a summit would be desirable only if a problem could not be solved otherwise."

In regard to a still-pending Hanoi proposal for ending the Vietnam War, Nixon advised reporters "not to get out on a limb."

Speaking seriously and choosing his words with evident care, he said: "We are actively pursuing negotiations in Vietnam in established channels." He said "it would not be useful to negotiate in the newspapers."

Lt. Gov. Morris

Schedule Morris Dinner

W.C. Askew, president of the Central Missourians for William S. Morris for Governor, announced Wednesday that a $50-a-plate barbecue picnic would be held for Morris at the Tiki House Thursday evening.

A cocktail hour, starting at 6:30 p.m., precedes the dinner.

Askew emphasized that tickets are still available and could be obtained from B. A. Fischer.

The Thursday evening event is the second Democratic fund-raising affair for Morris this year. Last spring a similar barbecue was held in Jefferson City. Askew said between 350 and 400 people are expected in Sedalia Thursday.

Morris was elected lieutenant governor in 1968. The Kansas City Democrat is an attorney and is associated with the law firm of Morris, Foust, Moudy and Beckett in Kansas City.

In 1964 he was appointed public administrator of Jackson County by Gov. John M. Dalton and in 1966 he was elected to that office. He was appointed to the Senate Redistricting Commission by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

In a recent poll of 3,668 Democratic state and county committee members, 38.1 per cent indicated they favored Morris in the up-coming 1972 gubernatorial race.

Explorers of Apollo 15 Prepare For Return Trip

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 15's astronauts neared the end of six days of moon exploration today and prepared to fire out of lunar orbit for the trip home and man's farthest-out space walk.

Before they leave, they'll add another dimension to one of history's greatest scientific expeditions. They'll eject into orbit a small satellite to probe additional moon secrets.

David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden will complete the experiments in their flying science lab when they kick the satellite loose at 4:10 p.m. EDT.

At 5:20 p.m. they plan to trigger the engine of their spaceship Endeavour to break away from the grip of lunar gravity and start the three-day journey back to earth.

The astronauts were quiet today as they busily aimed their cameras and scientific instruments at the bleak surface 70 miles below, trying to squeeze as much knowledge as possible out of the alien moon.

In one brief exchange Mission Control told them: "It's been raining a lot in Houston, and you guys will have a lot of grass-cutting to do when you get back down here."

"The weather's been good up here," Scott commented.

At Mission Control Center, experts today remotely switched on the television camera which Scott and Irwin left on the moon, mounted on their moon buggy.

They swung it back and forth and it relayed a sharp picture of the landscape at Hadley Base, including the lower half of the lunar lander Falcon and the experiments left on the surface.

"Looks like Boot Hill from a distance," one controller said.

The instruments in the distance looked like tombstones.

After 14 minutes, the camera suddenly ceased transmitting. Efforts to restart it failed. Experts had no immediate explanation for the loss. Its batteries may have given out.

Scientists had hoped the camera would retain power at least until Friday to view an eclipse of the sun as seen from the moon.

Worden will take the space walk Thursday—about 196,000 miles from earth and more than 40,000 miles from the moon—to retrieve film canisters from an equipment bay at the rear of the Endeavour.

Because the hatch will be opened, all three men will be exposed to the vacuum of space and will wear pressurized suits.

Before they retired Tuesday night, capsule communicator Bob Parker asked them if they had taken sleeping pills the night before.

Astronauts traditionally have been reluctant to take medicine on space flights and Scott replied a bit testily: "No, there's been no medication taken by anybody on the flight."

Parker: "Okay. However, we down here would like to recommend for all three of you to take one tonight just to make sure we get another good night's sleep."

Scott: "I think that's unnecessary."

Parker: "Well, that's our recommendation anyway."

Since Scott and Irwin completed man's most productive exploration on the surface of the moon on Monday, the three astronauts have been in moon orbit operating a $17-million array of cameras and scientific instruments, chemically and photographically charting nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface.

Peking Has Charged U.S. 'Double-deal'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Peking threw a charge of "double-dealing" today against U.S. efforts to solve the China question in the United Nations.

It accused Secretary of State William P. Rogers of lying in trying to push "the preposterous proposition of two Chinas."

"Rogers' so-called realities of the two Chinas are his sheer fancy," said Red China's official news agency in a broadcast from Peking. "The clumsy 'two-Chinas' trick played by U.S. imperialism is absolutely illegal and futile."

This condemnation came as the United States was working behind the scenes to line up support for two resolutions, one inviting Red China to join the United Nations and the other to prevent the expulsion of Nationalist China.

The sources said the resolutions would be submitted for the General Assembly session opening Sept. 21 as soon as the delegations determined whether their governments would become cosponsors.

The first resolution would offer the Communist regime in Peking a seat in the United Nations, would specify that the Nationalist government on Formosa would continue to be seated and would direct the specialized U.N. agencies to take the decision into account.

As a further safeguard to Nationalist

China's membership, the second resolution would classify any resolution to expel the Nationalists as an "important" question requiring for its adoption a two-thirds majority of those voting.

This is the maneuver by which the United States barred Red China's admission to the United Nations last year. Asked at his news conference Monday whether the U.S. government was dropping its claim that Peking's admission was an important question, Secretary of State William P. Rogers said the Nixon administration's decision to no longer oppose the admission of the Communist regime made this "academic."

Albania and 17 other friends of Peking have already submitted the annual resolution to seat the Red Chinese and expel the Nationalists.

Adoption of this resolution would automatically throw out the two American proposals, and the United States will seek a special vote in the assembly to have its resolutions voted on first.

The Americans' "important question" resolution was approved last year by a vote of 66-52, with 7 abstentions, but the fate of the similar resolution this year depends on whether opposition to the expulsion of the Nationalists outweighs the recent swing in Peking's favor.

Petitions Lacking For Ky

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky asked the Supreme Court today for a place on the Oct. 3 presidential ballot, but his petitions lacked 38 of the 100 necessary certified endorsements by provincial councilmen.

"I have not given up," Ky told a news conference. "I am still fighting. I will fight until the last minute."

If the court rejects his petitions, Ky said, "then we will see what happens."

Minutes later, retired Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, who filed his qualifying petitions last week, announced his support for Ky's attempts to get on the ballot. A spokesman for Minh said it was "unthinkable that the vice president of the country should not be able to run for president."

"It reflects on the whole democratic process. It means that the vice president can be pushed around not only by the president but by a mere province chief," he added. Ky's failure to qualify would make the election a two-man race between President Nguyen Van Thieu and Minh.

The vice president accused Thieu of trying to block his candidacy and called this "an obvious and undeniable travesty of the democratic process."

He conceded that his petition was partly an appeal to public opinion, and his aides acknowledged that they do not expect the court to accept his candidacy.

Ky circulated a list of 102 councilmen he said had signed for him, but he said 40 of them had been forced to endorse Thieu earlier. He asked the court to award these to him. He charges that Thieu used pressure to collect signatures which he did not need and at the same time prevent province chiefs and mayors from certifying endorsements given to Ky.

Ky arrived at the Supreme Court 2½ hours before the filing deadline for candidates, at the head of a 15 car convoy that included a group of air force police serving as his personal security detachment.

Nearly $16,000

By PETE DANIELS
Managing Editor

JEFFERSON CITY — Francis M. Knifong, Calhoun, former Henry County Circuit Clerk, is short $15,953.45, an extended audit of his accounts has revealed.

The announcement came Wednesday from state auditor Christopher (Kit) Bond.

According to a spokesman in Bond's office, a routine audit of Henry County's books, covering a period from 1965 to 1969, showed an original shortage of $15,651.81 in the trust fund for which Knifong was responsible.

The fund should have had a total of $21,319.86 in available cash at the end of 1970, but a supplemental audit, requested by the Henry County Court for that year, showed only $4,247.18 in cash on hand.

The supplemental audit revealed an additional shortage of $301.64, Bond's office indicated, bringing the total to $15,953.45.

Knifong's term as circuit clerk expired Dec. 31, 1970.

What action will be taken to recover the money will depend on Henry County authorities, Bond's office said.

Knifong was indicted by a Henry County grand jury Aug. 31, 1970 and charged with possession of a bomb or bomb shells, the Henry County Sheriff's department said.

That charge was filed in connection with the discovery earlier in the year of an explosive device outside the Henry County sheriff's office.

No trial date has been set, the sheriff's department said, and authorities here had not taken action as of noon Wednesday on the shortage of funds reported by Bond.

Besides the shortage attributed to Knifong, Bond's audit revealed that Knifong's predecessor, Richard B. Hughes Jr., had a shortage of $1,119.23, which was

Accord On Draft Nearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House appeared ready today to approve an antiwar amendment as the price for extending the draft two more years.

But while House approval was expected with little trouble, antiwar senators said they will not even have to filibuster to block enactment of the draft bill until at least September.

House Armed Services Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., says the Indochina war language worked out by House-Senate conferees "will not tie the President's hands."

The House, by ever narrower votes, has turned down all previous war-pullout measures.

The draft bill's language urges President Nixon to negotiate a final date with Hanoi for a ceasefire and total withdrawal of U.S. forces from Indochina in return for release of all American prisoners of war.

The narrowest House rejection of such a proposal was the last: 219-176 refusal to accept the Senate's original amendment setting a nine-month deadline on the U.S. pullout.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said Tuesday he and Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, will easily be able to block Senate draft action until Congress begins a month-long recess Friday.

"It will not take a full-blown filibuster," Cranston said.

He also said antiwar senators will be able to filibuster the draft bill indefinitely after Congress returns Sept. 8 if Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield supports them.

apparently over-looked in the original audit.

The Henry County grand jury was called into session last year after a rash of criminal activity which included the destruction of property on Sheriff Wilbur Schmidt's farm. Several head of Schmidt's cattle were killed at the height of the incidents.

Schmidt earlier told The Democrat-Capital the grand jury was impelled to investigate cases of cattle rustling in the county as well as the incident in which the explosive device was placed outside his office.

Restoration Planned For Victoria Building

SYDNEY (AP) — When the Queen Victoria Markets Building was opened July 21, 1898, it was Sydney's wonder of the decade, if not the century.

Mayor of Sydney Alderman Matthew Harris said at the opening: "We can lay claim to solid and durable work, work that will live with the centuries and stand as landmarks in history, speaking to people yet unborn of our commercial, social and material existence. It may be truly said that we have here built for the future as well as the present."

This is the building that has just avoided by the tips of its turrets from being pulled down to make a civic square.

In 1898 the building, on the word of the chroniclers of the day, had a basement "big enough to lay two football grounds end to end," a ground floor with a tessellated pavement 200 yards long with 58 shops and a "coffee palace," a first floor with 17 large rooms; a second floor with 12 rooms; a third floor with a photographic gallery, showrooms and dressing rooms; and atop this the largest copper dome "south of the line" (equator) and a score of smaller copper turrets.

Today it's the Queen Victoria Building—no longer used for markets and warehousing as first intended. For many years the city fathers have been wondering what to do with this piece of Sydney City Council property.

In 1971 there are rats and a few parked autos in the dank and smelly basement; a mass of untidy shops and tea and coffee cafes on the ground floor, with the tessellated pavement hidden under all manner of floor coverings; the city public library on part of the first floor; the city Health Department on the second; a lot of rubbish and empty rooms on the third; and that great copper dome, 62 feet in diameter, is a storeroom. It's on a valuable chunk of real estate, probably worth $26.9 million to developers.

But there has never been in recent years any suggestion that it be sold for office buildings—only that it, or part of it, be restored, or that it be bulldozed and the area turned into a civic center.

Now the plan is to restore the old building to its former glory, and the cost is estimated at $4,480,000 against the original construction cost of $565,000.

Laboratories Seek Answers to Population Explosion

EDITOR'S NOTE — Under the pressure of a still-growing world population, scientists are seeking new, better and safer methods of contraception. In the following first of two articles on Contraception '71, AP Science Editor Alton Blakeslee tells what may soon be coming out of laboratories to help in the fight against the population explosion.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Just around the corner now looms a fabulous new one-month birth control pill.

It would act upon the pituitary gland in the brain, preventing it from releasing hormones necessary for conception to occur, and for pregnancy to be maintained.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Possibility of Pregnancy Requires a Doctor's Check

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Four years ago I had cancer of the cervix and was treated with cobalt for one month, but did not have a hysterectomy. I am still in my 40s. Is it possible for me to get pregnant again?

Dear Reader — Usually heavy doses of radiation, like the cobalt treatment you have had, stops all ovarian function. It has the same effect in this regard as surgical removal of the ovaries, including inducing an artificial menopause.

I never tell anyone they cannot get pregnant. You should have an examination and find out. Pregnancy after radiation, if it is possible, is not always wise because radiation increases the likelihood of having a deformed baby. Since the rest of your letter states you have children perhaps your concern is to prevent pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Will you say something about our stomachs? My husband has been in constant distress going on four years. After X rays, his doctor says his stomach problems are anxiety and pain is not physical. His diet has not been restricted. I can't understand why his doctor doesn't prescribe a limited diet. My husband also worries he'll lose weight if he is on a limited diet and he is thin enough already. Every time the TV is on there is an ad about gas bubbles, stomach distress, so it must be common.

The current pill is more like a shotgun. While it prevents conception, the female hormone-type chemicals in the pill affect other cells and systems of the body as well.

The new pill now promised involves a fantastic chemical, called Gonadotropin Releasing Factor—GRF—produced in the hypothalamus area of the brain. The GRF tells the nearby pituitary gland when to release the hormones responsible for a woman's releasing an egg, and for pregnancy to continue.

Now, two teams of scientists have synthesized this releasing factor, a chemical so powerful that a few thousandths of one millionth of a gram—one gram is 1-28th of an ounce—is enough to start the chain of hormone release.

This feat has just been achieved by Dr. Andrew V. Schally and associates of the Veterans Administration Hospital and Tulane University Medical Center, New Orleans, and by Dr. Roger Guillemin and his collaborators at the Salk Institute here.

A next step is to make a phony GRF, one that would be fooled by the pituitary gland, but which would block that gland from releasing its hormones. Such analogues, as they are called, have already been prepared by the scientific teams, and they might be fully tested for safety and effectiveness within two or three years. The day of the rifle-bullet contraceptive would be here.

The GRF is only one prospect in intensified research to find new contraceptives beyond the present pill, which came under a cloud of public worry during congressional hearings early last year. Pill use was associated with some increased risk of blood clots and other untoward effects.

Those alarms—unjustified in the opinion of some leading experts—prompted hundreds of thousands of women to turn from the pill, but a majority may have resumed its use.

Pill sales went down initially, but recovered as women resumed its use, or other women took it up. Statistics in some major American cities showed a slight increase in birth rate a year after the hearings, but officials are loath to attribute this simply to abandonment of the pill.

The majority of physicians and experts on birth control consider the pill as remarkably safe—safer than childbirth for example—and totally effective if taken regularly.

But the pill is not perfection, not the ultimate, hence the quest for even better methods, including a variety of methods that could suit everyone desirous of limiting family size.

Researchers are working upon minipills, hormone injections or implants that might be good for a year, pills that would induce abortion if a woman had conceived but didn't yet realize it, and pills for men. And there are the IUD's—intrauterine devices—made more effective through a small content of copper. There are also techniques to sterilize men or women, techniques that may be made reversible if the person should later desire parenthood.

Much research focuses upon the basic physiology of human reproduction, the miracle and mystery of procreating new life. Such knowledge might permit many childless couples to have the babies they want, as well as bring new, safe methods of contraception to be used by either women or men.

Animal experiments have turned up at least three chemicals that can suppress sperm production, but they may be too toxic for human use. Low doses of progesterone, one of the female hormones, can interfere with sperm maturation and mobility, but again there are questions of safety and practical application.

And some research is concerned with the capacitation factor—a chemical agent in the female reproductive tract that somehow alters sperm so they become able to penetrate the egg. A chemical that neutralized the capacitation factor might be an effective and simple contraceptive.

The present pill prevents ovulation by block the releasing factors in the hypothalamus. But the hormones in the pill affect other systems, too, and have been compared to "killing a mosquito with a sledgehammer."

That is why the concept of utilizing the GRF is so appealing. The only effect would be upon the pituitary gland to inhibit hormone release.

More Firms Announce Price Hike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Three more major steel firms have announced price increases on almost every kind of steel product, saying the boosts were needed to offset the cost of the new labor agreement reached Sunday with the United Steelworkers Union. A fourth steelmaker boosted prices on some selected products.
Announcing the average 8 per cent hikes Tuesday were Wheeling-Pittsburgh and Inland Steel Corps., the sixth and seventh largest, and Lukens Steel Co. of Coatesville, Pa., ranked 14th.
Kaiser Steel announced increased prices, effective today, on selected trade and tubular products and said it was studying boosts on other types of steel.
U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest, was the first to announce the increases Monday, hours after the basic steel industry settled on the new contract and four other major steel producers followed suit that day.
Meanwhile, companies which had geared down in an anticipation of a strike said they were slowly returning to production but were laying off workers because of a lack of new orders. Some customers had stockpiled large quantities of steel earlier this year in case a strike occurred.

Hearing Is Waived In Assault Charge

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Gordon Ellis McRoy, 30, Leavenworth, Kan., charged with raping a 20-year-old Kansas City woman July 27, waived a preliminary hearing Tuesday.
McRoy was bound over to Circuit Court for trial.
He is accused of forcing the 20-year-old to commit a crime against nature and of assaulting with the intent to rape a 31-year-old woman June 29.

League Requests Meeting

An attempt to bridge a so-called communications gap between the public and Sedalia's board of education was launched by the League of Women Voters of Sedalia and Pettis County Monday.

Dr. Chester Kirkpatrick, with the concurrence of the rest of the school board, suggested at the April board meeting that the League initiate public meetings to provide such a communication link.

Mrs. John B. Ellison, Jr., 2236 West Third, chairman of the League's voter service committee, said, "Because the League feels this to be a matter of vital and wide concern, it was decided by the League board that the voters service committee initiate public meetings by contacting interested civic groups to form a citizens committee, to be responsible for such meetings."
Mrs. Ellison said that letters were sent Monday to all civic organizations in the city asking for their participation in a meeting to be held at 8 p.m. Aug. 12 at State Fair Community College. At this time a citizens committee will be formed that will be responsible for setting up quarterly community-board meeting dates, publicizing these dates and conducting the meetings.
Mrs. Robert Edmonds, president of the League, stressed that the League was seeking only to provide the opportunity for better board-community relations, and that the letters setting up the steering committee meeting was in response to a request by school board members.
Mrs. Edmonds also pointed out that the League wants a broad representation of the city on the committee, and that the steering committee itself will set up the rules under which the informational meetings will be held.

City Streets Will Close For Repairs

City Engineer R. W. Cunningham said Wednesday that 13th Street from Ingram to Hancock would be closed to traffic on Wednesday and Thursday for resurfacing.

Cunningham advised motorists going to Bothwell Hospital to use 14th Street as an alternate route.

Other construction work this week will close 10th Street from Hancock to Marvin.

"We will start resurfacing work in the downtown area next week," Cunningham said. That work will include: Lamine, from Broadway to Sixth; Lamine, from Third to Fifth; Fourth from Osage to Lamine; Fifth from Kentucky to Lamine; Seventh from Kentucky to Osage and from Lamine to Massachusetts.

People in the News

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — Sister Ann Joachim, a Dominican nun, has won nomination to the Adrian City Commission and will run in the November general election.

The nun, a law professor at Sienna Heights College in Adrian, polled 1,521 votes in Tuesday's primary election, the most received by any of the 14 candidates.

Sister Joachim, 69, claimed when she entered the primary that Adrian had been a "one party" town too long. Adrian is in Lenawee County, which last voted for a Democrat when it helped elect Franklin D. Roosevelt to the presidency in 1932.

ENTEBBE, Uganda (AP) —

Prince Ronald Mutebi, son of Uganda's first president and last king of the abolished Buganda kingdom, has arrived to the greeting of thousands of cheering Buganda tribesmen.

Mutebi's visit was played down by the government, which warned that the Buganda kingdom will not be restored.

The prince, 16, came here Tuesday for summer vacation from studies at Bradford College near Reading, England.

His father, Sir Edward Mutesa or "King Freddie," died in November 1969 in London, 3½ years after being deposed by Milton Obote. Obote was overthrown in January by a military coup that put Gen. Idi Amin in power.

Amin arranged for the return of King Freddie's body as an "act of national reconciliation" between the two million Bugandans and the rest of Uganda's nine million people.

Police Report

Jim Walters, 2300 West First, reported a 1968 blue and white Chevrolet Camero, owned by M. E. Walters, was taken from the parking lot of Bing's Drug, Broadway and Emmet, at 11:00 p.m. Monday.

Police recovered the vehicle 21 minutes later at 14th and Warren.

Joseph Brummett, 503 East 13th, reported Tuesday his black bicycle was stolen Saturday while left overnight in the parking lot of Burkholder Inc., 118 West Second.

A. P. Landes, 2611 Plaza, reported Tuesday morning someone took over $250 worth of goods from his home while he was on vacation from June 15 to July 13.

Included in the theft was a lawn mower, a bicycle, a wheel barrow, and a tire and wheel.

John Turner, Otterville, manager of Missouri Valley Sales Co., Engineer and Harvey, reported Tuesday morning someone took four rotary cutter drive shafts from the west side of his business between July 26-27. The shafts were valued at $32 each.

John Turner, Otterville, manager of the Missouri Valley Sales Co., Engineer and Harvey, reported to police at 8:23 a.m. Thursday that six windows were broken at the firm by vandals overnight.

Turner reported that the damage was done by rocks and bolts that were stored outside the building.

Several bags of bolts of various sizes, used to assemble equipment, had also been opened and strewn around the area.

Vicki Stuart, 501 South Grand, reported to police at 9:41 p.m. Tuesday that two windows had been broken at her apartment. Police theorized that a bullet shot by a slingshot did the damage.

Magistrate Court

An Aug. 19 preliminary hearing was set Tuesday in Magistrate Court for Joe Johnson, 122 West Henry, and Raymond L. Maupins, 402 East Pettis, who have been separately charged with tampering with a motor vehicle.

The two men are alleged to have tampered with a 1969 Chevrolet belonging to Town and Country Motors, 3110 West Broadway.

They are being held in Pettis County jail in lieu of $2,000 bond each.

Larger Cities Are Losers In Desegregation Attempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big losers in President Nixon's delicate balancing act on Southern school desegregation appear to be the larger cities and towns below the Mason-Dixon line.

Almost inevitably this fall they will have to meet stiffened Supreme Court requirements for approximate racial balancing in elementary and secondary schools. But, unless Congress intervenes, the government won't help them buy and operate the additional buses necessary to meet the high court's April guidelines.

Another casualty in the White House decision Tuesday in the Austin, Tex., school case was Elliot L. Richardson, secretary of health, education and welfare.

Nixon specifically rejected the Austin desegregation plan mapped by HEW and approved by Richardson. By implication the chief executive cast aside Richardson's administration-adopted strategy of firmly but quietly enforcing the Supreme Court's toughened desegregation requirements without criticizing the ruling itself.

Nixon gained these multiple effects from two actions.

He said the Justice Department will appeal as "inconsistent with recent rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court" a decision by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Jack B. Roberts. Roberts allowed part-time integration of Austin pupils rather than the HEW plan requiring extensive busing for full-time desegregation.

The President also amended the administration's pending $1.5-billion emergency school assistance bill to forbid any expenditures for busing.

The net effect was to tell the South the administration opposes cross-town busing of students for desegregation but is required to enforce the letter of Supreme Court decisions. Past critics have called this tactic "hiding behind the court."

"I am against busing as that term is commonly used in school desegregation cases," Nixon said.

The President underscored this message by instructing the Justice Department and HEW to "work with individual school districts to hold busing to the minimum required by law."

The White House statements marked a sharp change in recent political tactics on the desegregation issue.

The administration, on Richardson's advice, has for the past four months muted any displeasure with the high court's pro-busing decision and emphasized its intention to enforce the edict—hoping for minimum controversy and disruption in the South.

With rising opposition in Southern cities to cross-town busing, the President has seemed to reject this course because politically it ties the administration too closely to busing advocates.

Amusement Construction Start Soon

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Construction on a $20.5 million park, to be known as "Kansas City's Worlds of Fun," is expected to be under construction within a month, according to an announcement today by Lamar Hunt.

Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs, is also chairman of the project's developer, Mid-America Enterprises, Inc.

The 500-acre site, a wooded area seven miles northeast of downtown Kansas City, will front on a new section of I-435 scheduled to open in June of 1972. The park is scheduled to open in April of 1973.

Rides and attractions at the park will be associated with different parts of the world, according to Hunt.

"American, European, Scandinavian, African and Oriental attractions will be represented in the five major sections now planned in the first phase," Hunt said.

When the first section opens it will cover 140 acres. Future development of the additional 360 acres is planned to provide motels, restaurants and other commercial facilities for visitors.

Jack Steadman, executive vice president of the Chiefs and president of Mid-America Enterprises, noted the park would provide more than 1,200 summer jobs for area students.

Randall Duell and Associates of Los Angeles is architect and designer of the park.

Hunt said the project was delayed a year "because of uncertainties in construction labor and the unfavorable money market that developed shortly after our initial announcement."

The announcement of the park was made at a luncheon today before more than 200 business and civic leaders.

Transplant Patient Critical

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Adrian Herbert, who underwent a heart-lung transplant 10 days ago, was in critical condition today after emergency surgery to repair a loose connection in his new organs.

Herbert, 49, has lived longer than anyone else after a graft of both heart and lungs. His operation by Dr. Christiaan Barnard's transplant team was the fourth attempted and the first outside the United States.

The previous longest survivor of such surgery lasted eight days.

It was discovered Tuesday that one of the couplings made during the operation July 29 had sprung a leak, and late Tuesday night, surgeons decided to patch the break in his right windpipe connection.

The surgery was successful, a spokesman at Groote Schuur Hospital said. He described Herbert's condition variously as "reasonable," "weak" and "satisfactory."

Informed sources said the patient's life was hanging by a slender thread and his condition was critical. Herbert had a close call last Wednesday when his body began rejecting the new lungs, but massive injections of drugs pulled him through.

Easy Road Predicted On Job Appropriation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A billion-dollar appropriation to get jobs for up to 173,000 persons in public-service fields is expected to sail through the House today with bipartisan blessings.

That's the price tag approved by the House Appropriations Committee to finance the first half of a two-year emergency employment assistance program enacted earlier this year.

Backed by the Nixon administration and the Democratic leadership in Congress, the program will give preference to unemployed Vietnam veterans seeking jobs as firemen, policemen, sanitation and conservation workers.

The number of jobs will depend on local wage scales, with a top of $12,000 for professional employees.

Every state is ticketed for a share, ranging from $100.4 million for California to $1.5 million for smaller states.

The money will be parceled out by the Labor Department to state governments, cities and other jurisdictions. The amount will depend on each area's percentage and severity of unemployment compared with national averages.

To be eligible, areas would have to have recorded three consecutive months of unemployment by at least 4.5 per cent of the work force.

The federal contribution would be 90 per cent of total wages with individual governments paying the remainder.

Last year Nixon vetoed a broader bill that included a public-service job provision, saying it would relegate large numbers of workers to "permanent subsidized employment." The veto was sustained.

Democratic leaders threw their support behind a new measure and the President finally endorsed it and requested financing through fiscal 1972.

Kansas Has Adopted Fair Housing Plan

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A fair housing ordinance prohibiting discrimination in housing and providing criminal penalties for violators was adopted Tuesday by the city commission on final reading by a 3-1 vote.

The ordinance is regarded as innovative for the state and nation in the addition of "sex" as a prohibited basis for discrimination in housing.

The city ordinance prohibits discrimination in the sale, rental, advertising and financing of housing accommodations on the basis of "race, color, religion, sex, national origin or ancestry."

It provides for up to a $500 fine, six-months in jail — or both — for persons convicted of violating the ordinance.

A Wichita Fair Housing Board of five members will be created to enforce the ordinance.

Berets' Marching Proceeds

ON THE LOLO TRAIL, Idaho (AP) — A 22-man marching unit of Green Berets from Fort Bragg, N.C., reached the historic Lolo Trail between Lewiston, Idaho, and Missoula, Mont., Tuesday in their trek to retrace the footsteps of Lewis and Clark.

The detachment, which left St. Louis on May 13 for the cross-country, four-month journey, moved into Idaho Monday evening under rain showers.

While the rain offered some respite from the hot asphalt, the troops' only complaint was that the Idaho Fish and Game Department at Boise denied them any fishing privileges unless they purchased nonresident licenses.

The Berets, about 70 per cent of whom have seen one or two tours of duty in Vietnam, camped Tuesday night at Whitehouse, a site recorded in the journals of Meriwether Lewis and William Clark as a camp-ground used on their 1804-06 exploration.

With some 200 foot-miles already behind them, the soldiers planned to strike out across the Lolo Trail Wednesday morning, winding their way along dirt trails and roads to Weippe, Idaho, and eventually Orofino, which they hope to reach next Tuesday.

At Orofino, the Green Berets will put into rubber boats on the Clearwater River. They will follow the Clearwater into the Snake River and the Snake into the Columbia towards the Pacific Ocean.

Attempt To Check Enemy Plan

SAIGON (AP) — Five thousand South Vietnamese paratroopers have moved into the jungles of War Zone D northeast of Saigon to check on North Vietnamese infiltration and search for enemy supply depots.

U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have not operated in strength in the vast enemy marshalling area for several months. "We think there might be some infiltration," said one senior U.S. adviser to the South Vietnamese.

U.S. field commanders say the withdrawal of 66,000 American troops from the provinces north of Saigon has left a big gap in the collection of intelligence. They acknowledge that they do not know what is going on in War Zone D or the extent of enemy infiltration across the Cambodian border even though U.S. forces have increased their aerial reconnaissance and sensor activity in the area.

War Zone D for years has been a staging area and base for enemy attacks on Saigon, Bien Hoa and other population centers.

The brigade of paratroopers, pulled out of reserve forces, moved into the jungles Sunday, but field commanders withheld disclosure of the operation until today for security reasons.

There have been no reports of significant contact.

South Vietnamese spokesmen say the purpose of the operation is to ward off enemy attacks during the National Assembly elections Aug. 29 and the presidential election Oct. 3.

Meanwhile, South Vietnamese troops on a similar mission in eastern Cambodia 55 miles west of Saigon continued to meet resistance. Four North Vietnamese were reported killed in a brief clash this morning in the third consecutive day of fighting south of the Saigon-Phnom Penh highway.

Voter Approval To Swimming Pool

WILLOW SPRINGS, Mo. (AP) — A $50,500 bond issue to help finance a community swimming pool and park was approved by Willow Springs voters Tuesday.

The approval came on a vote of 582 to 202.

Willow Springs now is eligible to receive matching funds from the state and federal government for the project.

Ann Landers

Grammar Shouldn't Affect A Marriage

Dear Ann Landers: I have been dating a young man for several years. Dan is everything a girl could want. Well, almost. He is kind, nice looking, considerate, fun to be with, and he makes good money. The only drawback is Dan's grammar. For example, he says, "I seen," "youse" and "have went."

I bite my tongue when he makes these awful mistakes, especially in the presence of my friends. I don't want to be ashamed of him, Ann, and I don't want to embarrass him either, but I'm afraid one day I might.

Is there a chance that we can have a good marriage in spite of this? I am 26 and a college graduate. Dan is 27 and attended trade school. I do love him, but I fear I'll be a nagging wife — or worse yet, a silent wife who is ashamed of her husband's grammar.

Please hurry your answer. He is waiting for mine. — York, Pa.

Dear York: Dan sounds too good to discard. Ask him if he wants to be corrected — when the two of you are alone, of course.

Incidentally, you misspelled the word grammar throughout your letter. It is AR, dear. Perhaps you and Dan are not so far apart as you think.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been enjoying the snoring letters immensely because this subject is very close to my heart. I used to snore, but I don't any more. The solution was suggested by my friendly druggist. I'd like to share it with you.

Everyone knows that snoring occurs only when the mouth is open — the trick is to keep it shut. Just take a piece of adhesive tape and place it over the snorer's mouth. Try it, Ann. It really works. — Des Moines Reader.

Dear D.M.: Thanks but I don't have to try it. I don't snore.

Dear Ann Landers: Not long ago you had a letter from a reader who wanted to know if it is possible for a woman to be pregnant for nine months and not know it. The writer told about a lady who had given birth in a parking lot — and until the last minute she denied she was pregnant.

A few days after I read the column the same thing happened in Grand Forks, North Dakota. This young couple (married for five years) had been told that they would never have a child and adoption was recommended. Shortly after, the young wife was stricken with back pains. She called the doctor because she was sure she was having a kidney attack. He rushed her to the hospital and her baby boy was born a few hours later.

The woman had been taking Alka Seltzer and Sal Hepatica for six months to relieve her "indigestion." She had also been dieting to lose weight. Her doctor told her she had a nervous stomach and not to worry. I've heard many people say you make up letters because some of the things that appear in your column are too far out to be true. Here is a good example that truth is stranger than fiction. — N. D. Reader.

Dear Reader: Right you are. Truth is stranger — in fact, that's the title of my last book, a collection of the best letters over these past 15 years. Thanks for giving me the opportunity to plug it.

Kansas City Man Fatally Wounded

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A 19-year-old Kansas City man, Lloyd Dennis Reed, was wounded fatally Tuesday night as he and a 16-year-old youth argued in a home.

The youth was to be turned over to juvenile authorities after questioning by detectives.

Body Recovered From Lake Ozark

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — The body of Carson McCray, 26, of Osage Beach, was recovered from the Lake of the Ozarks Tuesday.

McCray disappeared from an excursion boat on the lake July 2. Authorities believe he accidentally fell overboard.

Questionnaires Are Distributed

SWEET SPRINGS — Local Missouri Community Betterment chairman Carl Halter has announced that Sweet Springs Lions Club members will distribute the attitude and shopper's questionnaire this week and residents are urged to complete them as soon as possible.

The purpose of the survey, according to local MCB officials, is to provide a reassessment of buyer attitudes here.

Say Threat Of Disease Diminishes

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — State Veterinarian Dr. George C. Stiles said Tuesday that the threat to Missouri from Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis is on the downward trend.

The Animal Health Division of Texas reported to Stiles that 90 per cent of the horses in that state have been vaccinated and the plan is to complete the vaccination by the end of this week.

There have been 23 confirmed cases of the disease — all in Texas — in which 1,913 horses were reported sick and 1,354 dead. There have been no confirmed cases outside the state of Texas, Stiles said.

Another good sign that the disease is being controlled, Stiles said, is the fact that Texas has begun to permit rodeos to be conducted within the state. Animal health officials in Texas indicate that by next week horses will be permitted to travel outside of their home counties.

There has been some concern expressed about the horse shows at the Missouri State Fair in Sedalia, Stiles said, but a check with E. F. Strickler, superintendent of the horse show, indicated there are more horses than ever before entered in the competition. Some states had canceled all horse shows this year but the shows in Missouri will go on as scheduled, he said.

Stiles said that the surveillance by the Missouri State Highway Patrol of horse movement into the state will continue. Only those horses with proper credentials, health certificates and prior permits will be permitted to enter Missouri, he reported.

'Sounding Brass' Tops Concert Bill

Lloyd Knox, director of the Sedalia Concert Band reported Wednesday the group will top its tenth performance of the season at 8 p.m. Thursday with "Sounding Brass" by Maxwell.

Other selections prior to the intermission include "University of Idaho March," King; "The Pajama Game," Adler and Rossi; "Rain Medley," Yoder; "Salute the Duke," Yoder; "Block M," Bilik; "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," Mason; "Lara's Theme," Jarre; "Muskrat Ramble," Dry; "Keifer's Special March," Keifer.

Following the intermission, the group will perform "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite March," King; "Camelot," Lerner and Loewe; "Waltz Medley," including "Diane and Charmaine," Yoder; "Hi Fi Concert March," Mesang; "Wanting You" from "The New Moon," Romberg; and "Sound and Fury," Walters.

Processors Inspection Required

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Retail meat processors will be subject to state inspection if they wholesale products worth more than $10,000 annually to public eating establishments under new regulations adopted by the Kansas Board of Agriculture.

Present law exempts retailers from all except sanitary inspection if they sell 75 per cent or more of their production directly to consumers.

Other rules prohibit use of paprika to make meat more attractive and cyclamates as sweeteners, Jim Petr, chief of the Meat and Poultry Inspection Division, said Tuesday.

The laws, which become effective Jan. 1, 1972, also limit fat content of sausage to 30 per cent.

The whole carcass must be destroyed if malignant cancer is discovered in an animal. Now only the affected part must be cut out, and the rest of the carcass may be processed for sale.

Some processors and wholesalers have opposed the regulations. They meet federal standards or came about on the board's own motion.

Roll Call Vote On Funding Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is how area Senators voted in the 46-44 roll call vote Tuesday on a $4.1 billion State-Justice-Commerce department money bill.

Republicans for: Bellmon, Okla., Curtis, Neb., Dole, Kan., Hruska, Neb., Miller, Iowa.

Democrats against: Eagleton, Mo., Hughes, Iowa, Symington, Mo.

Republicans against: Pearson, Kan.

A total of 23 Democrats and 23 Republicans voted for the bill; 28 Democrats and 16 Republicans voted against.

Declassification Chore

President Nixon Tuesday asked Congress to launch a massive $5 million 6-year program to begin an "immediate and systematic" effort to declassify 160 million pages of secret

World War II documents. A National Archives worker takes a look at part of that massive file the President wants declassified. (UPI)

Declares Eagle Sanctuary

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A family of bald eagles has moved into an area where 100 new homes were planned, and the builder has declared the site a sanctuary.

Dick Bonds, president of the company developing Sterling Park, said Tuesday that as long as the eagles remain, their nest will not be disturbed by builders.

The eagle nest was sighted by architects for the project and Bonds' decision was immediate: The eagles stay.

"I don't see how there could have been any other decision," he said.

Bonds said the nest has two full-sized adults and one fledgling. He's not sure how old the birds are but says they have a life span of 25-35 years.

The birds mate for life and although they migrate north in the summer, they always return to the same nest if it's not disturbed, he said.

"I saw them from a distance, it was late in the afternoon. The sun was setting and they were wheeling around a lake. They were beautiful, just beautiful," Bonds said.

The local Audubon Society told Bonds that studies indicate the eagles need a radius of 660 feet of wild land from their nest if they are to remain.

He subsequently designated 32 acres of choice woodland surrounding the nest as a sanctuary.

One hundred homes had been planned for the site which, he said, when developed would be worth an estimated $620,000.

Bonds said plans for the 1,100-acre development north of here were not altered to build the homes elsewhere.

"We will have just that many fewer houses," he said.

To ensure the tranquility of the nest, Bonds had the architects, all members of the Audubon Society, put a moat around the site and then changed the line of a golf course fairway to run next to the moat.

The sanctuary land costs Bonds approximately $2,000 a year in taxes. As the surrounding land is developed he said he expects the taxes may double, "but we'll certainly try to keep the taxes down."

"It was a tough decision to make in that there is a lot of money tied up in it," Bonds said. "I don't mean to sound too altruistic; we feel we'll be able to use the land some day, but as long as they're there, they'll have a home."

So ya wanna be a Marine?

Girls of the Missouri Young Marines underwent inspection by Sgt. Maj. Mabel Otten in graduation ceremonies at the Army Record Center in St. Louis County this week. Sgt. Maj. Otten is

Teacher Shortages Are History

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Most Missouri schools will have plenty of teachers and administrators when they open this fall.

Dr. Arthur L. Mallory, state commissioner of education, conducted a survey Monday at a meeting where about 90 per cent of the state's 629 school districts were represented.

"As of today," he said, "it appears the schools across the state still need a number of teachers in the more critical areas of instruction"—such as remedial reading, special education, speech correction, mathematics, science, library services and music.

In the survey, about 100 school districts indicated they still had one or more vacancies but most of them are expected to be filled when schools open.

Last year, the public schools employed about 50,000 teachers.

Enrollment totaled 1,078,000 and is expected to be about the same this year.

Mallory said the State Board of Education has decided to discontinue issuing emergency teaching certificates except in a few critical fields.

After years of a teacher shortage in Missouri, why is the situation better now?

Warren Black, assistant commissioner in charge of special services, said one of the reasons is that economic conditions—layoffs, cutbacks in production and so on, have forced many trained teachers and school administrators to return to the educational field.

In addition, school enrollment began to level off about two years ago and this has had some effect on teacher supply.

Black also cited the World War II "baby boom" as a factor.

"These young men and women who were born in the late forties have graduated from college—some have served in Vietnam—and are now ready to enter the world of work, including the teaching profession."

Black said there probably always would be a teacher shortage in some smaller districts in rural areas because younger teachers prefer urban areas.

The survey was conducted at the 10th annual Conference for School Administrators with Department of Education officials. More than 600 attended the two-day meeting.

New Worries on China

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. decision to support Red China's admission to the United Nations should assure ample votes to seat Peking in the world organization this fall, but it also injects new complications.

The view is widely held at U.N. headquarters that the two-Chinas solution the United States is urging is not practical because of Peking's vehement opposition, even if the Chinese Nationalists could be persuaded to accept it.

Some U.N. diplomats predict that Peking will not send a delegation to the United Nations if the General Assembly backs the U.S. effort to prevent expulsion of the Nationalists.

Delegates among those sponsoring the resolution to seat Peking hinted that they might withdraw the proposal if the United States is able to block the ouster of the Nationalists.

"It wouldn't be our resolution," one of the sponsoring diplomats said. "We wouldn't accept it."

If the proposal, known as the Albanian resolution, were withdrawn, others could be introduced, of course. Japan, for example, has circulated some suggested drafts, all of them based on the idea of two Chinas.

U.N. diplomats disagree as to whether the United States can succeed in getting the assembly to separate the expulsion of the Nationalists from the seating of the Communists and to determine that the expulsion is an "important question" requiring a two-thirds majority.

Defeat of the U.S. efforts would clear the way for the immediate seating of Peking. It also would be easier for Nationalist China—and its American supporters—to swallow U.S. acceptance of Formosa's ouster. However, even pro-Peking diplomats do not rule out the possibility that the United States can muster enough votes to kill the expulsion.

"The United States has a lot of influence," one diplomat said, "and you can never be sure how many votes they can get."

On the question of Chinese representation in the Security Council, Secretary of State William P. Rogers also seemed to move away from past U.S. policy which suggested that Washington would use its veto to keep Nationalist China from being ousted.

American Torture Role Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two young men, who say they served in U.S. intelligence, have testified Americans joined in murder and torture of Vietnamese civilians who were indiscriminately branded Viet Cong.

"I never knew a person who ever lived through the interrogations," K. Barton Osborn, 26, of Washington, told a House Government Operations subcommittee Monday. He said he had been Army private working under cover of various civilian and military identifications.

Osborn estimated several hundred Vietnamese died during questioning in the 15 months he said he served in Vietnam in 1967-68. He told of twice seeing Marines toss Vietnamese to death from airborne U.S. helicopters to convince other prisoners to talk.

Mike Uhl, 27, of New York City, saying he had been an Army lieutenant in military intelligence in 1968-69, charged the Phoenix program aimed at fighting clandestine Communists in South Vietnam—was a dragnet instead of a specific-target plan for spotting Viet Cong.

"If one assumes, as I do, that Phoenix is a hoax, that thousands of Vietnamese are indiscriminately classified as VCI (Viet Cong infrastructure) based on no specific targeting procedure, based on no evidence, then this is just one more colossal example of wasted funds and personnel," Uhl said.

Osborn and Uhl, under questioning by Rep. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y., said the Geneva Convention was never mentioned in their training.

Reid said Phoenix is "a total and clear violation" of international rules of treating prisoner and civilians in wartime. He urged the subcommittee to call high-ranking officers to closed-door meetings to discuss the charges.

Praises Labor Efforts

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson praised the settlements in both the steel and rail industries Monday after reporting of the situation to President Nixon. Hodgson told newsmen at the White House that the Labor Department felt it had been a good weekend "on the industrial peace front." (UPI)

Open New 'Two China' Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is opening a fresh round of consultations with United Nations members on means of preventing expulsion of Nationalist China while voting to seat Communist China in the world body this fall.

State Department officials, making the consultations known, say the administration is confident it can give United Nations members an alternative to Albania's resolution to oust Taiwan and seat Peking. The fact the Albanian resolution won a majority vote last year — two-thirds was required — does not mean it will obtain the same this year, according to these experts.

Japanese and European, Asian and Latin American members are being contacted to co-sponsor a resolution requiring a two-thirds vote of the 127 U.N. members for expulsion of the Republic of China on Taiwan. American strategists say a number of nations that either abstained or voted for the Albanian resolution last year can be expected to support the U.S. two-China compromise.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers unfolded the U.S. policy Monday after intensive consultations with President Chiang Kai-shek's government on Taiwan brought understanding but not agreement. The Rogers announcement was delayed for two weeks or more in the exchange of messages with the Nationalist government.

Rogers, in announcing the policy, stressed that for the U.N. to succeed in its peace-keeping role, world realities must be faced.

Having both Chinas in the U.N., he said, would provide increased opportunities for contact and cooperation on common problems, such as pollution and environment control, disease and weather research affecting all U.N. members, regardless of political differences.

Rogers noted the U.N. was designed above all else to keep the peace which had been shattered by two world wars within a single generation.

This recalled a 1967 article in the magazine Foreign Affairs by Richard Nixon before he became president. Nixon wrote then:

"We simply cannot afford to leave China forever outside the family of nations, there to nurture its fantasies, cherish its hates and threaten its neighbors. There is no place on this small planet for a billion of its potentially most able people to live in angry isolation ... the world cannot be safe until China changes. Thus, our aim, to the extent that we can influence events, should be to induce change ..."

Rogers, in announcing the new U.S. policy, said mainland China has changed.

Peking had been strongly opposed to the U.N. and had demanded that its charter be amended, but softened in the last year, Rogers said. China's attitude toward other countries also has eased with establishment of new diplomatic relations.

Finally, Rogers said, with a population of one-quarter of the people on earth, it is important in keeping the peace to have China's voice heard.

Geared For Battle

ARVN soldiers are geared for battle as they watch through jungle underbrush for Communist soldiers in an area 12 miles northwest of Svay Rieng inside Cambodia. The area, about 75 miles west of Saigon, is being swept by a 3,500 man force searching for Communist infiltration routes into the Mekong Delta. (UPI)

Suffragette Finally Reached Her Goal

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — She picked the White House, staged protest marches, went to jail for "obstructing traffic" and was denounced in Congress for "promoting treason."

But Alice Paul finally got what she wanted.

And more than a half-century later, at age 86, Miss Paul scents another victory.

"We have the only weapon we need now to win passage of the equal rights amendment—the vote," says the tiny woman who fought so tenaciously to capture that weapon earlier in the century.

The proposed amendment to the Constitution would expressly forbid discrimination on the basis of sex.

"Women are finally aroused enough" to use their vote in their own behalf, said Miss

Paul, the last of the militant suffragettes who wrote the equal rights amendment first introduced in Congress in 1923.

"Politicians from the President on down had best realize that," she added in an interview.

But it wouldn't be the first time politicians and presidents have underestimated the determination of women like Miss Paul.

The daughter of a Quaker banker, she was 28 and a Swarthmore College graduate when she helped take command of the suffrage movement in 1913 after years of fragmentation following the death of Susan B. Anthony.

Seeking to impress Woodrow Wilson with the movement's strength, Miss Paul organized a march by 8,000 women down Pennsylvania Avenue the day before his inauguration as president.

The sight of the marching women touched off a wild melee among spectators, finally quelled by troops from a nearby fort.

Arriving at deserted Union State during the brawl, Wilson was surprised no one was there to greet him.

"Where are the people?" he asked. At Miss Paul's parade blocks away, he was told.

Wilson later refused to meet with delegations dispatched to the White House by Miss Paul. But extensive picketing, sometimes causing riots, and several arrests of Miss Paul and her followers finally moved Wilson. He eventually became a staunch supporter of the 19th Amendment that gave women the vote.

That's all ancient history, said Miss Paul, who doesn't like to dwell in the past.

"We're organizing now in every state to get the equal rights amendment passed this session without any crippling changes," she said.

Members of Congress "will be bombarded" during the August recess, said Carol Burris, a member of the National Woman's Party founded by Miss Paul and coordinator of the nationwide lobbying effort.

Congressmen who resist, she said, "are going to have a hard time getting volunteers in their next campaigns." Women make up 90 per cent of such volunteers and 53 per cent of all voters, she said.

The House passed the amendment last year, 350 to 15, after Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., dislodged it from the Judiciary Committee through an unusual parliamentary maneuver. It died in the Senate.

Record Collection On Intangible Tax

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri collected a record $28,048,742 in intangible tax this year, compared with $25 million last year.

James E. Schaffner, state revenue director, said the amount is 59 per cent more than was collected in 1968. He credited procedural improvements in the department for the increase.

Schaffner said a consultant recommended several data processing changes last year which would lead to further collection increases but the legislature provided no money for the work.

The intangible tax is rebated to the counties where it originates, then allotted to various local government units on a pro rata basis. The state keeps 2 per cent to meet collection costs.

The tax is levied on securities, savings accounts and other intangible property.

Urchins Killed By Scuba Divers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scuba divers say they killed about 800,000 purple sea urchins in a project designed to make the sea safe for seaweed.

Ecologists say man created a seaweed shortage in the Pacific off Southern California by killing too many sea otters, which live on urchins. The urchins multiplied unhindered and have eaten most of the kelp that is the habitat of many other marine creatures.

"There's nothing down there any more but the urchins," said one diver. "They've driven away the abalone and the lobster and just about everything."

Alarmed conservationists started the Palos Verdes Underwater Restoration Project, which began operations Sunday with nearly 1,000 volunteer divers on hand armed with hammers and hatchets. Divers reported that urchins lay so thick on the ocean floor that a single hatchet stroke sometimes killed eight of the pincushion-like creatures.

Nail-Biting Period Has Now Arrived

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With a little more than a month until the new television season starts, it is ulcer-making and nail-biting time around the networks and the big film studios.

Once the stepchild of the film industry, television today dominates it and is keeping many of the big studios going. Fewer than 10 theatrical films are in local production while more than 110 television series, movies-for-TV and specials are in the works.

Actors and actresses who once ignored if not scorned the young medium have become available—for series, for guest shots, and for leads in the long filmed features the medium calls "movies."

Production of fall shows is proceeding full steam, but nobody knows whether he has a hit or a disaster until it is much too late to do anything about it.

Those involved in returning series, especially series coming back in new time periods, are as uptight as the newcomers. Can "Mod Squad" buck the new, tough competition from Glen Campbell and "Ironside"? Will the early Wednesday evening audience—more youngsters—love Carol Burnett as much as the late viewers did on Monday?

Variety shows have succumbed to last season's overexposure, and the wheel has turned so that law-and-order shows and situation comedies—escape and relaxation—are once again in style.

"Relevancy," which was last season's favorite word, is out of television's 1971-72 vocabulary.

Mind Your Money

Financial Danger in Franchises

By PETER WEAVER

Q—Please furnish information concerning the many distributorships and franchises which are available to individuals. All they say you need is from $1,000 to $4,000 initial investment.

I talked with one representative and the deal looked good. However, he would not permit me to talk with anyone who is operating one of the company's distributorships. He said the operators didn't have time for inquiries from prospective investors. Is this so? R. P., Arlington, Va.

A—When they won't provide names of others, it's a clue to stay away. The National Association of Franchised Businessmen suggests this checklist when you interview a franchise salesman:

—Can you get a copy of the complete franchise agreement so it can be checked out by your lawyer? Always have a lawyer check anything before you sign.

—How many people are operating franchises?

—Can you get a list of franchise operators with addresses and phone numbers? If you can, check out three or four. Don't be fooled into visiting just the one franchise operator the salesman suggests. Could be a phony.

For more information on all aspects of franchising, write: National Association of Franchised Businessmen, 422 Washington Bldg., Wash., D.C. 20005.

Q—I'd like to know more about linoleum and vinyl floor coverings. Our linoleum needs replacing and I'm not up to the waxing this kind of floor demands. Is vinyl better? Mrs. G. V., La Canada, Calif.

A—You can certainly cut down on the waxing if you put in a vinyl floor. The toughest vinyl is in tile form and will last many years. Rolled vinyl is easier to install but it won't last as long.

Q—Some hippies and other undesirable characters have moved into our apartment building and I'm worried about the coin-operated washing machine we all use. Do you have the names of chemicals I could use to sterilize the machine? — Mrs. L. P., Washington, D.C.

A—All washing machines harbor germs, no matter who is using them. Ask your apartment manager what the water temperature is on your machine. Coin-operated machines often use much hotter water than those in the home. Hot water kills some germs, but not all.

Here are some chemicals the Department of Agriculture says work well for sterilizing home laundries:

In hot, warm or cold water use liquid chlorine bleach or a quaternary disinfectant such as Co-Op Sanitizer or Roccal (available in pharmacies). In hot or warm water, use a pine oil disinfectant (label should say at least 70 per cent steam-distilled pine oil) or phenolic disinfectant such as Pine-Sol.

Q—I read your column about "fake diamonds" with much interest. You said strontium titanate has a hardness of 6 while the so-called YAG (yttrium aluminum garnet) stones have a hardness of 8 which is closer to the hardness of diamonds.

Does this mean YAG stones are better? Are there other kinds of fakes? D.W.D., Pottsville, Pa.

A—Strontium titanate stones are "softer" than YAG stones but they have more of a fire-like color. YAG stones wear better than strontium titanate but are still far from the hardness of real diamonds.

I suggest you read the booklet "Facts About Diamond Imitation." It tells how fakes are made and gives a critical rundown on the various kinds, listing most of the brand names. You can get a copy by writing: Jewelry Industry Council, 608 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10036.

Dilution Seen in Airport Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — New bills in Congress and the Federal Aviation Administration's reaction to widespread protests from airport operators indicate new government safety standards for airports will be both diluted and deferred.

Airport officials claim the proposals would double the operating costs of many smaller airports.

"We recognize at this time there will be impossible compliance dates and consideration is being given to that problem," said James T. Morse, chief of FAA's safety operations branch, in an interview.

Most of the airport operators' complaints to the FAA are against proposed requirements for crash, fire and rescue equipment and crews. Morse said "we're considering some modification" of those proposals.

The National Association of State Aviation Officials said the crash, fire and rescue proposal alone would cost an average of $100,000 per airport for equipment, or a total of $55 million, plus a like amount each year for operational costs.

The FAA proposed the safety standards last May 14 as required by the Airport and Airways Development Act of 1970. The law sets a May 21, 1972, deadline for the FAA to certify that all airports handling scheduled airlines flights have complied with the regulations.

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., however, introduced an amendment Friday to defer the effective date of the certification procedure for one year. Baker and Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.C., also introduced separate proposals Friday to have the federal government pick up all or most of the cost of meeting the new standards.

FAA administrator John H. Shaffer said in a letter to Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., that "it appears that the proposed airport certification rule, as proposed, will be modified in certain areas." The final version of the rules is expected in late autumn leaving the airports about six months to comply.

The rules would require airports to have one or more fire vehicles manned by crews trained to get them to the scene of a disaster within three minutes. The amount and capability of the equipment would be at one of five levels, depending on the size of aircraft using the airport.

Airliners could be prohibited from landing at an airport whose fire vehicle was out of order for more than 72 hours.

National Transportation Safety Board reports show there were 132 aircraft accidents at or near airports which involved fire between 1955 and 1968. Improved crash, fire and rescue equipment might have saved lives in nine of the accidents in which 200 people were killed, the report says.

Severe Market Setback

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market suffered one of its worst setbacks of the year Tuesday as prices plummeted amid speculation about an increase in the prime lending rate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 14.89 points to 850.03, its lowest closing level since Jan. 20, when it ended the day at 849.95.

Among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, declines outpaced advances by about 5 to 1. Trading volume reached 13.49 million shares.

On the American Stock Exchange, where 3.6 million shares changed hands, the price-change index dropped .35 to 24.37.

Analysts said the sharp decline was triggered by speculation about a possible increase in the prime rate, which is the interest commercial banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate borrowers. They said the prime rate was of concern to investors because most other bank interest rates are scaled upward from it. The prime rate currently is 6 per cent.

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally told newsmen in Washington he was distressed at reports of a possible increase in the prime rate.

"Further unjustified increases in interest rates, already high by historical standards, might well jeopardize the strength of the business recovery," Connally said.

Officials Assured Of Shuttle Attempt

GOODLAND, Kan. (AP) — City officials have been assured they will have an opportunity to present their case for consideration of the Goodland area as a space shuttle site.

City Attorney Charles Sparks told the City Council Tuesday night that Sen. Robert Dole, Sen. James Pearson and Rep. Keith Sebelius assured him the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would consider the area.

Sparks said Gerald P. Gaffney, NASA director of operations, was expected to visit the Goodland area in the near future to collect technical data.

Garden City and the Hays-Russell area already have been surveyed by NASA officials. They are among a reported 76 locations in the running for the site.

A Kansas delegation headed by Lt. Gov. Reynolds Schultz will meet in Washington Thursday with top NASA officials to boost Kansas for a site of a shuttle base.

School Levy Hike Rejected By Voters

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — Fort Zumwalt School District voters Tuesday rejected a proposed 54-cent hike in school taxes from a current rate of $4.41 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Needing a two-thirds majority for passage, the issue was defeated 1,112 to 968. Supt. Philip Bonner said district schools operated at a deficit of more than $300,000 last year.

Commercial Construction Rate Notes Big Decline

The number of building permits issued in Sedalia has almost doubled in the second quarter of 1971, compared to the same period last year, but the pace of commercial and industrial construction in the city has nosedived, according to a report released this week by Woodrow W. Garrison, city building inspector.

According to Garrison, 105 building permits were issued during the second quarter of 1971, compared to 60 last year.

Most seriously affected by the recent economic squeeze were commercial and industrial building projects. The estimated construction costs of all commercial and industrial work in the second quarter came to $132,600, compared to $350,240 for the second quarter last year.

A tremendous surge of residential construction activity in April this year indicated that new housing units are being built at nearly four times the 1970 rate. The amount spent on residential construction in the second quarter this year was set at $681,410, compared to $256,125 in the same period in 1970. There were 77 residential building permits issued in the 1971 second quarter, compared to 37 last year.

Other construction work begun in the second quarter included the $1,754,000 junior high school and a $120,000 church addition. These were not counted as either commercial or industrial projects.

Total construction spending in the city was up in the second quarter, amounting to $2,296,910, compared to $631,765 in the same period last year.

The amount collected for building permit fees tripled over last year. Garrison's office took in $2,854 in this year's business, compared to $714 in the second quarter in 1970.

Nixon Presents Promise Of Minimum of Busing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disavowing his administration's action in an Austin, Tex., school desegregation case, President Nixon has promised Southern cities he will stand for no more busing than "the minimum required by law."

Nixon found faulty under recent Supreme Court decisions a plan submitted by local officials and ordered into effect by a federal judge. And he said Tuesday his administration will not use those Supreme Court decisions to push for extensive busing of pupils to eliminate racial segregation.

In appealing the judge's ruling in the Austin case, Nixon said, the administration will back away from an alternative plan drawn up by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare requiring cross-town busing to achieve a racial balance in the city's schools.

Nixon also sought to ensure none of the $1.5 billion he seeks from Congress to ease the trauma of Southern school desegregation will be used to pay for busing—extensive or minimal. He said HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson has submitted to Congress an amendment "that will expressly prohibit the expenditure of any of those funds for busing."

Nixon's statement followed an announcement by Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell that the Justice Department will appeal the July 19 ruling by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Jack B. Roberts in the Austin case.

Roberts rejected the HEW busing plan, favoring instead one drawn up by Austin school officials requiring only part-time integration.

The HEW plan was the first drawn up by the administration following the Supreme Court's ruling in April that busing is a permissible means of achieving school desegregation.

Nixon said in appealing Roberts' ruling, "The Justice Department will disavow the HEW plan on behalf of the government."

He pointedly added: "I have instructed the attorney general and the secretary of health, education and welfare that they are to work with individual school districts to hold busing to the minimum required by law."

Despite Nixon's antibusing stance and Mitchell's assertion that the appeal "was required because the order of the district court did not comply with prior decisions of higher courts," the action was attacked by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

It appears Nixon "does not really oppose forced busing or that he lacks the resolve necessary to control those who pursue it in his name," Tower said.

"I cannot and will not support this action, and I condemn it as inappropriate, unnecessary and inconsistent with announced administration policy," the senator said.

The notice of appeal was filed with the district court in Austin, and it may be 30 days before the Justice Department submits a brief outlining its position to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many executives and professional persons these days are receiving offers of $5,000 loans for as long as five years from strangers merely for fixing their signatures to an application. Thousands are doing so.

The offers, which are made through the mail, require no security. The questionnaire may take only 10 minutes to fill out.

The applicant's business associates may not be checked. The reason for the loan may not be verified.

Understandably, business seems to be thriving. Substantial companies are involved in the lending, and the record to date suggests that not only is demand high but that profits can be even higher.

Who borrows? Universal C.I.T. Credit Co., which entered the field three years ago, reports that doctors are the most frequent borrowers, followed in order by bankers, business executives, certified public accountants and dentists.

"We really don't care what they want the money for except that it must be for a legitimate purpose," said Edward W. May, vice president of the C.I.T. subsidiary.

The important thing to the lenders is that the borrower is not overextended, that the loan is for a reasonable amount and for a good purpose, and that the borrower has a good, steady income above $15,000 a year.

Despite the lack of security, almost all loans are repaid properly. May reports that out of many hundreds of loans made since his company entered the business he is currently concerned about only two, both to doctors.

In one instance the doctor lost his license and went to jail. "The other is going hippie on us; he joined a commune," said May.

Most loans to doctors are made only after the applicant has been in business many years. Many young doctors are overextended, May has found.

Bankers are frequent customers because of an old tradition that they not borrow from their own bank and because of a desire for confidentiality that would be breached by borrowing from a competitor.

They pay well for their loans,

18 per cent a year on the unpaid balance, or 1.5 per cent a month. That means a $5,000 loan paid back in 48 monthly installments costs $2,049.28 in interest charges. For the five-year limit the price is $2,617.60.

One of the obvious hazards for the lenders involves the unknown financial obligations of the applicant.

The industry faces this problem by trusting to the philosophy of "trusting the applicant and then checking him" insofar as it is possible. But the averages are on its side.

In May of this year the median income of borrowers was $23,000 and the average length of employment was 14 years. Almost all borrowers are well established in their communities. Not only do they have the ability to repay but the reputation to uphold.

And there is one other assurance that the lenders insist upon. The wife must sign also.

Corn Blight Field Meeting Date Announced

Two corn blight field meetings will be held in Lafayette County Friday. Both are Extension meetings scheduled by Vic Carothers, extension area agronomy specialist. Assisting will be William J. Murphy, extension state agronomy specialist (field crops) from the University of Missouri-Columbia.

The morning session starts at 9 a.m. at the Charles W. Schaeperkoetter and son farm north of Corder near State Road BB. This is about 1½ miles north of Highway 20 and Corder on BB and one mile east on first gravel road.

The afternoon meeting begins at 2 p.m. at the Charles Payne farm on State Road KK, 3½ miles west of Concordia and ¾ mile south of Interstate 70.

Short tours will be made to nearby fields to observe and study corn fields of "T," "N" and Blend seed and differences in damage from southern corn leaf blight. Topics discussed will be: other corn diseases, possibilities of protective fungicide sprays and harvesting suggestions for seriously damaged corn.

Charleston is the capital of West Virginia.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Sedalia, Missouri, Wednesday, August 4, 1971—Section B

Hearnes Vetoes Controversial Bills

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes vetoed two bills Tuesday, including a controversial bill to raise pensions of legislators and state employees.

The other veto killed a dual drivers' license bill because, the governor said, it would jeopardize federal highway aid. The pension bill would have increased both legislators' and state employees' retirement benefits by 25 per cent without any increase in their 4 per cent contributions, which are matched by the state.

The governor said a study showed that since contributions were not increased to finance the higher benefits, the bill would not be actuarially sound.

"While favoring higher retirement benefits for state employees," he said, "I cannot approve benefit changes which were not financed and therefore not actuarially sound."

Last year in a referendum election the voters overwhelmingly defeated a pension increase for legislators and other state employees because of the disproportionate benefits for the lawmakers.

Hearnes suggested the legislators be put under a separate retirement plan to solve the problem.

"There are limits to what the state of Missouri can hope to achieve through its retirement system," he said, "but it is obvious that higher benefits are warranted in recognition of both increased living costs for retired workers and the need to bring benefit levels within closer reach of those offered by other employers.

"In order to move in that direction, I recommend that members of the General Assembly be placed under a separate retirement plan. It is well known that public attitudes are often sharply different with regard to pension benefits for employees and those for legislators.

Retirement benefits have not been increased for state employees since 1961. The governor noted Missouri's pension plan is not competitive with private industry, other states of the federal government, "which diminishes the ability of the state to attract career employees."

If the bill had become law, Hearnes said, the trustees of the retirement system would have been forced to increase employee contributions to 6½ per cent, a 62½ per cent increase in contributions in return for a 25 per cent increase in benefits.

"Under those conditions, this legislation would represent a financial loss for the employee rather than a gain," Hearnes said.

The governor used several examples to show how poor the state retirement system is in contrast with other pension plans.

If a state employee retired after 20 years at an average salary of $10,000 annually, he would pay $400 a year and get a pension of $2,000 a year.

At the University of Missouri, he would pay nothing and get $2,624.

In Arkansas he would pay

$390 and get $2,500 and in Iowa pay $273 and get $2,900.

In four typical industries, he would pay little or nothing and get from $1,860 to $3,000 a year.

A probate judge earning $10,600 would pay in $530 a year and after 12 years of service could retire at $5,300. A comparable state employee after 12 years would get only $1,272.

A teamster hauling construction supplies pays in nothing but gets $7,300 for the first five years of retirement and $2,640 for the rest of his life.

In the future, the governor suggested that retirement system changes be drafted with the help of actuarial firms instead of legislative committees to make them technically correct and actuarially sound.

The other bill vetoed would have protected a man's chauffeur's license if he received violation points on his passenger car driver's license.

"I have been informed by the secretary of the U.S. Department of Transportation," Hearnes said, "that to enact a dual system as outlined in this legislation would place Missouri in violation of the federal driver licensing standard and would result directly in the loss of substantial federal highway funds."

Won't Press Case For Lawyer Ouster

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas attorney general's office agreed not to press its ouster case against County Attorney Mike Holland at Russell after attorneys for both sides reached a settlement Tuesday.

Holland was charged with refusing to prosecute 63 traffic tickets written by highway patrolmen stationed at Russell.

After instructions by Judge L. A. McNalley to agree on as many issues as possible, lawyers for both sides announced the settlement following a recess.

COME BACK TO BREAD ★ SOYA-SERVE IS HERE!

*Extra good taste.
Protein-fortified.*

*Tastes better,
toasts better,
"Keeps" better.*

Extra enrichment, too. A "healthful food" you can buy at your grocer's.

Give it the toaster test. You'll love its unique toasted taste.

*Baked with a happy
and wheat flours.*

*Best-tasting bread ever.

Now you'll start eating bread again. And you'll love it! This delicious new loaf tastes a little like homemade, a little like the white bread you're used to. It's the bread for today's tastes and fast-paced life.

Every slice is a slice of life, because Soya-Serve is fortified with extra protein. You get the kind of body-building nutrition everybody needs, every day. The extra protein comes from the soybean, that "miracle" food that's a powerhouse of nutrition.

Enriched with extra vitamins and minerals, too.

Soya-Serve is so good, it's going to make a bread-lover out of every member of your family.

And you'll be glad, because there's body-building protein in every bite!

Soya-Serve is made according to the Blend-K formula developed by scientists at Kansas State University.

Uncovering Caesarean Mystery Is Goal of U.S. Archeologists

By HAL McCURE
SEDOT YAM, Israel (AP) — An American archeological team is utilizing the tools of modern science to solve the long buried mysteries of the Roman city of Caesarea.

It's a race against time—and bananas.

"We have to preserve the antiquities and stop encroaching agriculture," explains Dr. Robert Bull, expedition leader.

Caesarea was built by King Herod the Great in the first century before Christ as the capital of Roman Palestine.

It was one of the largest Roman colonial cities in the Middle East, sprawling over 8,000 acres on the Mediterranean coast, about half way between what is now Tel Aviv and Haifa. Its population may have reached a half-million.

After the Romans came the Persians and the Byzantines, who were in turn vanquished by Arab's desert warriors under the sword of Islam.

Europe's crusading knights conquered Caesarea in the 12th century and held it on and off the next 200 years until its final destruction by the Arabs in 1291.

Most of Caesarea's past grandeur lies buried under the drifting sands today. Only a few Byzantine columns and statues and the squat Crusader fortress are tourist attractions.

Except for a fine Herodian theater, excavated and partially restored by an Italian team in the mid-1960s, and a crumbling aqueduct north of town, nothing can be seen of the original Roman city.

Bull finds it incredible that there has been no real attempt—until now—to uncover Roman Caesarea.

"Lord knows what we will find here," he adds.

For it was only 10 years ago that archeologists discovered a Roman inscription mentioning the name Pontius Pilate.

It was the first archeological evidence of the actual existence of the procurator of Judea, under whose rule, from 26-36 A.D., the crucifixion of Jesus occurred.

Bull, who is director of the William F. Albright Institute of Archeological Research in Jerusalem and head of Drew University's archeological department, has collected a team of 50 volunteers, primarily students from Drew and Los Angeles Occidental College. They receive credit for the dig.

"We are digging with teaspoons, as it were, so slowly it is agonizing," says the stocky, balding archeologist. "We're sifting everything coming out of there—gems, pottery, coins, everything that is a dating clue."

Bull hopes to write the city's history eventually, after more excavation. Among the structures buried are a giant amphitheater and hippodrome, the locations of which are known, and a temple.

Bull also is using scientific aids in his search. These include infrared photography and measuring the earth's magnetic field and its resistivity.

Bull's team moves a fluxgate magnetometer across the fields to register variations in magnetic force, recorded when it encounters any anomaly, such as a wall buried under the sand. It is the first time this instrument has been used for such exploration in the area.

Plotting the various variations on a chart hopefully will yield the street patterns.

The team also plans to send an electric current through metal probes imbedded in the earth. The resistance encountered can be measured because electricity travels at one rate through sand and at another through stone.

"Hopefully, I can get still another picture of what's beneath us," Bull said.

A third method to help find the streets will be to take infrared photos of Caesarea from the air at night as the earth cools. Sand quickly emits heat while buried stones hold it back.

"The photos again should give us a pattern," the archeologist said.

"We still have another ace in the hole, and I mean that literally," Bull said. "I mean the sewers."

Caesarea had a unique sewer system, flushed daily by the sea. The flooding tide would come up into the sewers beneath the city and the ebb tide would flush them out.

Some of the sewers were nine feet in diameter, "big enough to drive a Jeep through," Bull says. He has located several sewer entrances, which have been blocked by sand. Bull said he could trace the sewers back under the city to locate the streets. "Roman engineers usually built sewers beneath the streets," he said.

Before a new highway destroyed many nests, thousands of cliff swallows studded the walls of DeBeque Canyon in Colorado.

S-C Class of 1961 Gathers Here

The class of 1961 of Smith-Cotton High School recently met for their ten-year reunion. A family picnic was held and that evening a dinner and dance were held at the Old Missouri Homestead. A total of 106 class members were present for the event.

During the banquet Charles Case, class president, presided over a short business meeting and presented various awards.

Jim Gray was named the most recently married and Mrs. Judy Weseloh Milroy had the youngest child. Three members of the class tied for the most children, Mrs. Sara Sutton Hansen, Mrs. Linda Hall Barnes and Mrs. Peggy Craig Prim, each with four children.

Awarded prizes for traveling the longest distance were:

Mrs. Judy Strain Pinkston, Prineville, Ore.; Mrs. Andrea Roose Lancaster, Pomona, Calif.; Ronald Whitehead, El Cajon, Calif.; J. R. Farris, Cocoa Beach, Fla.; and Mrs. Peggy Craig Prim, Dover, Del.

A booklet with information about class members was published for the occasion and a response was received from 85 per cent of the class members.

Teachers in attendance were Mrs. Alma Hausam, Mrs. Doretta Waite, Wes Sanders and Mrs. Polly Ann Sillers.

Souvenirs of the occasion were ceramic beer steins made by the reunion committee and distributed to each class member.

Confidence In America Said Shaken

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The former ambassador to NATO, Robert Ellsworth, said Tuesday night that world confidence in the United States has been shaken because of defense cuts in western Europe "to feed the Vietnam war."

"The basis of the world's confidence in our ability to appreciate and watch out for our own national interests was deeply shaken," Ellsworth said.

He described America's national interest in Vietnam as peripheral. The former Kansas Congressman from Lawrence, spoke at a dinner meeting of the midwestern conference of the Council of State Governments.

Ellsworth said President Nixon is withdrawing from the war in Vietnam and moving to correct the military imbalances between NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

"Today our NATO allies are with us; they trust us and they have confidence in us," he said.

But he warned the situation could change if the United States cuts back forces in western Europe.

Ellsworth noted a proposal in May by the Senate to cut off funds at the end of this year for half of the 300,000 U.S. troops in Europe.

Ready Compromise On Election Laws

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats, hoping to shave the odds for 1972 by fashioning veto-proof reform of election spending laws, have compromised readily with Republicans on three major points.

Dozens of lesser amendments remained today before a final vote.

By voice vote Tuesday the Senate approved a limit on election spending by federal office-seekers of 10 cents per voter, but with no more than six cents of it for either print or broadcasting, as the candidates choose. This would allow each presidential nominee to spend $8.4 million for radio-TV ads.

The Senate voted 72 to 21 to repeal equal-time broadcast restrictions for all federal candidates, not just for president and vice president, and 88 to 2 to establish a federal elections commission of six members appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate.

"These changes are going to make it more difficult for the President to veto it," said Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chief Democratic floor strategist. Last year President Nixon vetoed a bill limiting broadcast spending only, saying it was not comprehensive enough.

A tough fight had been expected over the spending limits, which Democrats wanted to put at five cents per eligible voter for broadcasting and five cents for newspapers, magazines and other print media.

Republicans, who outspent financially pressed Democrats 2 to 1 on broadcast advertising in the 1968 presidential race, supported the overall 10-cent limit but wanted candidates to be free to spend all of it on whatever media they chose.

Both sides appeared adamant until the issue came up on the floor. But a compromise was quickly approved by voice vote.

The compromise retains the Democratic 5-5 formula, but allows the candidate to spend up to 20 per cent of his print dollars for broadcasting, or vice versa.

Pastore, who urged the Senate at the outset of debate not to "make this a game between Republicans and Democrats," also readily compromised on two other issues which administration officials had indicated were most important.

Democrats have been pushing hard for modification of Section 315A of the Federal Communications Act, which has effectively blocked broadcast debates between presidential candidates since 1960, when Congress temporarily suspended it to allow the Nixon-Kennedy debates.

Section 315A requires broadcasters who give free air time to one candidate to give equal free time to all other candidates for the same office. While assuring fair play, it also deters broadcasters from giving time to serious candidates when there is a proliferation of minor-party candidates for the office, as there always is for the presidency.

Pakistanis, Greeks

House Votes Aid Cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to suspend the Greek and Pakistani military governments from U.S. foreign-aid rolls in an effort to force internal reforms.

Withholding all $118 million from the Greek military junta to press return of democratic rule was upheld by the House 122 to 57 Tuesday night after a shouting, accusation-trading debate.

Cutoff of up to $445 million aid for Pakistan until it resolves turmoil blamed for the flight of 10 million East Pakistani refugees to India was upheld without a fight.

The House then passed a foreign-aid authorization with $3.4 billion for each of the next two years. The 200-192 vote sent the bill to the Senate.

Backers of Greek aid, led by Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., tried to remove the ban on grounds the military junta has brought stability to Greece, wants to restore democracy and must be kept a friendly NATO ally.

But Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-

Ohio—with Burke shouting objections from the aisle—accused Burke of making a "patent plea for dictatorship."

Hays said the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which wrote the curb, was only trying to pressure the Greek junta into living up to its promise to restore democracy to the country which invented it.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said he believes President Nixon will restore the Greek aid by declaring in writing that the aid is in America's overriding interest, an escape clause in the bill.

Even then the bill would limit Greek aid to the $90 million approved last year, not the President's $118 million.

Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J., who won the Pakistani aid suspension in committee, said it would cut off $225 million new aid and up to $220 million already approved but not allocated.

The aid would be cut off until President Nixon notified Congress that political turmoil was being resolved in East Pakistan and refugees' property and rights were being restored.

Opponents charged the curb indicates foreign policy. Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill., said the action could aggravate "a major war" between Pakistan and India.

The House rejected amendments to cut off aid to Brazil until reports of political torture are discounted; trim $206 million Alliance for Progress aid to South America over the two years, and add $10 billion to the bill for economic aid to poor countries.

Q—Since Cablevision, Inc., chooses to ignore its franchise agreement with the city, is there anything to keep another cable television company from coming in?—M.K.H.

A—Mayor Jerry Jones said, "I don't think there is anything to prevent another cable television firm from coming to Sedalia, but I am not completely sure about it." One of the reasons Jones thinks there is such a possibility is that Cablevision was granted a non-exclusive franchise to operate here. This could mean that the door is open to competition, it was reported.

Q—Are there any reasons why the Liberty Park fountain is not used any more than it is?—R.S.

A—Jack Coutts, superintendent of parks, told Hot Line there were several reasons for the limited use of the fountain. He said the fountain was not operated on week days mainly because there are only a few visitors to the park then. "Most of our park patrons utilize the facilities on weekends and nights so we turn on the fountain when greater crowds are there," he said.

Another reason cited by Coutts was turbulent weather. "On windy days, the fountain can shoot water 30 feet in all directions and rapidly drain itself," he said. The fountain is filled by park personnel with water which is then continuously recycled.

Another reason for curtailing the fountain's operation on those windy days is the obvious fact that anyone going near it could get drenched, Coutts said.

Q—Do the clothes donated to Goodwill Industries stay in Sedalia or are they taken to other cities?—R.S.

A—Hot Line contacted Albert Miller, business manager Goodwill Industries, Kansas City, who said that clothes and other items from Sedalia were taken to the organization's main plant in Kansas City, repaired and cleaned and then placed for sale in one of six stores in the metropolitan area.

Miller said that his organization was set up to provide employment for handicapped persons and the repair facilities offered the only way to do this.

Reply To Criticism Is Issued

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A Democratic reply to a Republican criticism of Atty. Gen. Vern Miller's methods in a drive against the drug traffic was issued Tuesday by Mrs. Mary Allen.

Mrs. Allen, Democratic state vice chairman, wrote a letter to Miss Lahoma Dennis, former executive secretary for the Republican State Committee.

"As a mother of two 'teen-aged children,'" Mrs. Allen wrote, "I personally am pleased Atty. Gen. Miller has kept his word and is arresting drug pushers and peddlers. I hope all law enforcement officials, elected officials and all Kansans, will support Atty. Gen. Miller in his war on the drug pusher."

Miss Dennis made public last week a letter she addressed to the Kansas Finance Council urging that it reject a plea by Miller for more money to continue his drug fight.

Miss Dennis accused Miller of seeking publicity.

"The office of chief attorney for the state of Kansas has become a mockery," she wrote.

"It appears that if Mr. Miller were not so interested in a spectacular display for the media, an arrest could be made at the time a buy is made and the 'buy' money could be confiscated and used again."

Mrs. Allen's response said:

"The comments contained in your letter are incredulous. I would hesitate — as would most Kansans — before I would say Vern Miller has made the office a mockery. He is enforcing the laws of this state as they should be enforced. Your views appear to be rather distorted."

BUSINESS NEWS

The newest addition to Sedalia's downtown stores will be Bozarth's Men's Wear, 222 South Ohio, which will be opened at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Brent Bozarth, Townhouse Manor, will be the owner-manager of the store. He will be assisted by the following sales personnel: Miss Vicki Yount, 1100 South Barrett; Wayne Durrill, 1405 South Carr; and Conley McAnally, 1309 West Third.

Bozarth said the emphasis in his store will be on "the latest styles for all ages," beginning at boys' size 12. The store will sell a wide variety of clothes by Baronet and El Dorado, an exclusive double-knit line by Leonard Macy, shirts by Van Heusen, pants by H. D. Lee, Excello and Leonard Macy, hosiery by Camp, knits and sweaters by Leonardo Strassi, Van Heusen, Jersild and Puritan and outerwear by Windbreaker and Rugby.

Bozarth said that area residents attending the opening ceremony are invited to register for two prizes, a Honda motorcycle and a suit, or the cash value of a suit. Drawings for the suit will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday and for Honda at 4 p.m. Sept. 7.

WINDSOR — The Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Dismuke have purchased Ewert's Country Inn from Mr. and Mrs. Art Ewert and opened for business Monday.

Mr. Dismuke is pastor of the First Baptist Church in Leeton and will continue to live there. Mrs. Dismuke will operate the business, which is now known as Rich's Restaurant.

The Federal Aviation Administration recently awarded one company a $49.1 million contract for air traffic control automation equipment.

Tipton Boy Is Released In Chicago

(Democrat-Capital Service)

TIPTON — Billy Fry, who underwent a kidney transplant in Chicago in June was released from the hospital but must stay at the Arlington Hotel there until this Friday, it was learned Tuesday.

Mrs. Lawrence Fry, the boy's mother, told The Democrat-Capital that the boy will be allowed to return to Tipton Friday after some tests at the hospital. She added that when she saw Billy three weeks ago the changes in him were "remarkable. He is as easy going as can be, like any other kid," she said.

Mrs. Fry and the other two children plan to leave for Chicago Thursday.

She said Billy is allowed to move about and visits the Chicago Zoo once a week along with his father who is staying with him.

She said the Children's Memorial Hospital, where the operation was performed, will send Billy's medical bills to Mrs. Toni Siegel, 1803 West Fourth, Sedalia, who was co-ordinator of the Billy Fry medical expense fund drive here earlier in the year.

According to Mrs. Siegel, the fund in the Sedalia Bank and Trust Co., now stands at approximately $14,500 after paying about $3,500 in medical bills from the General Hospital, Kansas City, where Billy was taken earlier for treatment.

Billy's expenses at Arlington Hotel are being paid out of the Fry fund in Tipton. That fund stands at about $7,000, according to Mrs. Fry.

Mrs. Siegel said that even after returning home, Billy will have to go to the Chicago hospital once a week until Dr. Frederick Merkle, his surgeon there, decides the need to see Billy is not as great, depending on his condition.

Lockheed Decision Is Ominous Precedent

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — It is no mere accident that the congressional go-ahead to grant massive financial aid to Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and other ailing firms has split liberals, divided conservatives, and cracked the business community into querulous factions.

Sensitive Americans, whatever their ideology, have become acutely aware of the growing, sometimes overweening, power of the federal bureaucracy. They see a ubiquitous, omnipotent Uncle Sam pushing an already-mixed economy toward state socialism and imposing controls that, taken together, throw off a totalitarian odor.

All the economic implications aside, the Lockheed decision worries a lot of people simply for what it symbolizes in terms of further needless encroachments of federal power.

More than 100 federal agencies are now controlling or influencing business activities in a wide variety of areas. Whether it is the price of an airline ticket, the content of a toothpaste ad, the marketability of antibiotic or the desire of two firms to merge and enhance the chance of survival, the federal government has the last word.

One need not be an arch-conservative, harping psychotically against "big business," to develop uneasiness about the pervasive influence of the bureaucracy. Power tends to corrupt government officials in ways that have nothing to do with stealing; the exercise of power successfully in one area creates a seemingly insatiable appetite to exercise control in other areas.

Give government licensing authority over television, and the right to impose a "fairness doctrine," and pretty soon some bureaucrat wants to decide what TV stations can charge for political advertising, or some politician wants the right to second-guess the editing of TV documentaries.

Give an attorney general wider authority to tap people's telephones, or bug their homes and offices, under circumstances where a court says such surveillance is justified, and pretty soon the attorney general is asserting an "inherent" power to eavesdrop electronically without resort to court procedures.

Both liberals and conservatives are concerned about this assumption of governmental omnipotence, but it creates a special dilemma for liberals.

Judging each instance of federal intrusion on the merits, liberals have applauded in most instances. Of course we need a Securities and Exchange Commission to put an end to the scandals where slicksters were speculating with other people's money. Yes, there ought to be a Federal Communications Commission to protect the public's interest in the airwaves and the limited number of TV channels; without FCC there would be bedlam.

Of course, we need federal machinery to pressure firms and unions to stop discriminating against minority group workers. Obviously the big industrial polluters will never straighten up if there is no environmental protection agency to prod them.

On and on it goes, whether the issue is consumer protection, minimum wages, school desegregation, or the loaning of money by banks: in almost every instance, abuses by business or organized labor and injustice or indifference at lower levels of government have provided a reason for the federal government to tighten its control and supervision over vital areas of life.

No liberal wants to revert to an era when robber barons thrived, child laborers were abused, blacks were disenfranchised through terror and trickery, and laissez-faire too often was a license to steal.

Yet no true liberal wants a situation where a vast federal bureaucracy shouts "public welfare" and proceeds to wrap society in a welter of daddy-knows-best restrictions and police-state controls.

Since World War I, when federal encroachment began in a big way with President Wilson ordering the government to run the railroads for 26 months, on through Roosevelt's New Deal and the Nixon administration's bid for a $2 billion bonanza for troubled firms, we have seen abundant evidence that Americans cannot have it both ways. As the direction seems always to run in the direction of greater powers for government and fewer liberties for the people.

Many conservatives, normally most charitable to the military-industrial complex, have backed away from the proposals to aid Lockheed and other ailing corporations because they foresee a heavy price in new governmental power. They know that in the last 50 years this country has taken giant strides toward state capitalism, and that the Lockheed affair is destined to produce major new inroads against the concept of free enterprise.

It would be nice if the Lockheed issue were only what the machinists' union and some government officials portray it to be: just an effort to keep a major firm from going under, causing severe dislocations in other companies and the loss of thousands of jobs at a time when unemployment is drastically high. But the Lockheed affair raises some agonizing questions about man's relationship to government, and the kind of society we want to maintain. And there are no easy answers.

Break in the Clouds On Public Housing

At long last, light has been sighted at the end of the public housing tunnel.

Meeting Tuesday, city and Housing Authority officials reported that the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the contractor had reached an agreement whereby the units would be brought up to federal standards. Occupancy was said to be as little as two weeks away.

After more than six months delay from the time the units were reportedly completed, this is good news indeed. It is especially so to the 180 or so families that are waiting to move into the units.

It has been an agonizing wait for them, standing by as one dispute after another conspired to keep them out of housing which, whatever its shortcomings, represented a decided improvement over their current dwellings.

Principals in the running dispute have been AMCON, International, the contractor, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The crux of the argument involved AMCON's insistence that the Sedalia units met the requirements of "safe, decent and sanitary" housing set by HUD for such lease-type programs.

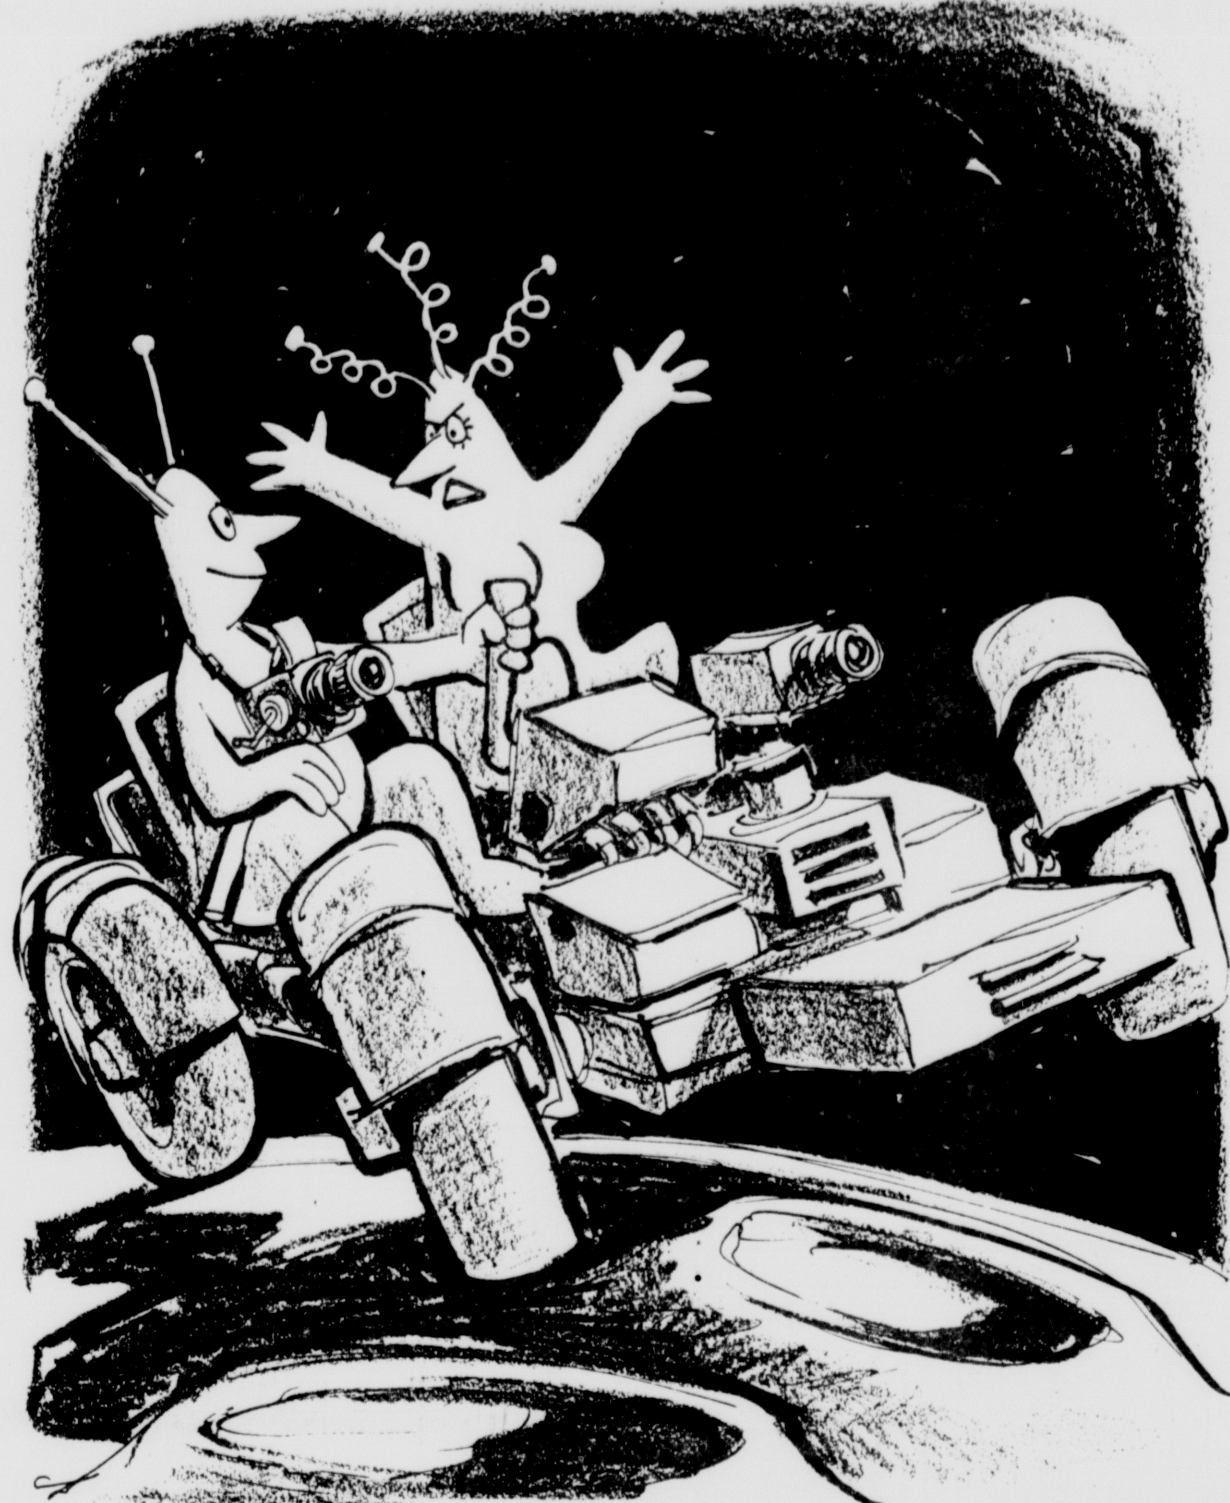

HUD was equally firm in maintaining that the units did not measure up.

While arguments, in light of the law, can be made on both sides, the upshot of the settlement announced Tuesday is that the local housing units will be brought up to standards that HUD probably will demand of all such housing in the future. In this sense, the "Sedalia case" may be some sort of precedent as far as public housing is concerned.

A vote of thanks is owed the many city officials—especially the members of the Sedalia Housing Authority—who worked long and hard over the last 34 months, to make public housing a reality here. Theirs has been a hard-earned lesson in the fine art of bureaucratic in-fighting.

Once opened, we hope that the 200 public housing units will be but the first step in providing decent housing for Sedalians who desperately need it. This is especially true of the city's unusually large number of aged poor.

But let's hope we can avoid some of the pitfalls in future programs that were so painfully learned in the current one.

Navy's War Plans Date Back Decade

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Secret Navy procedures for dealing with a surprise attack have not been updated for 10 years and are "obsolete," according to a new classified Pentagon report on the vaunted Naval Ship Systems Command.

The report says that it sometimes takes Navy mail six days to travel one block. It pinpoints deficiencies in ship safety and pollution control. And it says that contractors are finding the Navy an easy mark for contract plunder.

The study grows out of a meticulous, 18-day inspection of the command, an 83,000-employee operation that swallows more than $3 billion of the federal budget each year.

The command is responsible for designing ships, supervising their construction, paying the contractors, evaluating the vessels and overseeing shipyards. Its work is at the heart of the Navy's combat capability.

While the new report had praise for some aspects of the command's operations, it also contained blunt criticism. "NAVSHIPS is not prepared to react if an emergency situation develops," it says. "The NAVSHIPS Contingency of Operations plan has not been updated since 1961."

"Therefore, emergency instructions to NAVSHIPS personnel and assignment of personnel to man the relocations site (a hideaway headquarters set up for emergencies) are obsolete."

The inspection also revealed that the Pentagon's secret "Emergency Action Document" has not been reviewed by the ships command. Nor have the contingency plans to mobilize non-industrial facilities for a war effort been implemented.

The report even cites the chief of naval operations himself, Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, for failing to specify how some inactive ships can be put back into the fleet if they are needed.

The inspection was ordered by Adm. J. D. Arnold, naval material chief and boss of the Ships System Command. Each of its more than 200 pages are stamped "For Official Use Only."

To insure security, Admiral Arnold decreed it is "not releasable" except with his "written consent" or that of his chief inspector, Vice Adm. G. E. Moore II who carried out the probe.

The language is polite as befits an admiral with the unpleasant job of investigating the work of another high officer, in this case, Rear Adm. Nathan Sonenshein, the head of the Ships System Command. But there is no mistaking the call for reform.

"At the time of combined trials, some submarines have not been sonar certified," said the document. "Two SSBNs (nuclear ballistic missile subs) are presently operating in the fleet without sonar certification."

Besides violating Navy regulations, faulty sonar could mean an American sub would be unable to locate an enemy sub or ship as it approached. Ultimately, a defective sonar could cripple the sub's role as a retaliatory weapon.

Admiral Sonenshein, after observing to us that "you have no business with that survey," courteously told us he is well-satisfied with its overall findings.

In fact, he said, he had gotten permission to print a brief report on the findings for his staff.

"Funds have been cut severely," he explained in answer to some of the report's criticisms. "It's a matter of what you do about day-to-day problems. The attack on Washington problem and the mobilization have to take lower priority."

Sonenshein said he had been formally updating the surprise attack plans when the inspection began. There was never a lapse in less formal contingency plans, he contended.

The admiral said he is answering those parts of the report with which he disagrees, and working to improve where he concurs. But on what gets top priority for reform he said, "We have had to make hard decisions all along the line."

Note: In a future column, we will print more items from the classified preparedness document.

Over 100 shrimp and oyster fishermen in Southern Louisiana are making headway in a complicated legal battle. They seek to recover damages suffered as a result of the March, 1970, Chevron oil fire and spill in the Gulf of Mexico.

Veteran Louisiana court house observers scoffed when the ragtag band of fishermen marched into court to bring the giant Chevron corporation to its knees.

The oilmen moved in their big legal guns and demanded dismissal on grounds the fishermen could not claim damages for shrimp and oysters they didn't own and hadn't caught.

But the shrimpers' lawyer, Joshua Tilton, argued that the fishermen were deprived of their right to take healthy fish from the Gulf through Chevron's negligence. Before the spill, the fishermen claim, they were catching numerous large shrimp. Now, hey say, the shrimp are fewer and much smaller.

The court recently refused to throw out the suit, a major victory for the shrimp and oystermen who now believe they have Chevron on the ropes.

Democratic Party Split By Factions

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

CHICAGO (NEA) — Two strong trends, in clear conflict with each other, are tugging at the Democratic party. One is bent toward smoothing over differences for the big presidential struggle of 1972. The other gives party reform top priority, even if the push for it enlarges those differences.

Blossat

Here in Illinois, in Minnesota, California, New York and other places, the word is plain:

"People in the party don't want another Chicago, another 1968. They don't want any more big battles. The sooner they get a chance to line up behind one guy for the presidential nomination, the better they'll like it."

What this means is that if one candidate jumps off into an early 1972 lead by winning most of the March-April primaries, hundreds and hundreds of party leaders at all levels will quickly move his way. They are just looking for the excuse to move.

This urge to develop a united front is not limited to conservative party wheel-horses and other traditional types. It embraces a lot of liberals in the crucial big states, including some with a substantial wish for reform.

More importantly, however, they fear another political bloodbath of that sort could cost them the next election. And, taken together, the unity types are governed by one overriding, pragmatic purpose—to beat President Nixon.

The hardline party reformers, on the other hand, are postponing their worry over Nixon. What they want first is 100 per cent compliance with agreed reforms on the part of the 50 state Democratic organizations.

Most of the proposed changes have to do with opening up party procedures to allow for freer, more current, more balanced selection of national convention delegates.

The militant reformers are quite right in saying that only a handful of state organizations are today in evident compliance with the McGovern-Fraser commission reform guidelines. The commission's own July 16 report cited nine in this category, including just one (Ohio) of the most populous 10.

Another five, including New Jersey, have "unofficially complied," whatever that means. Some 28 states have assured the national party they will be in full, official compliance by the end of 1971. Deducting for overlaps, that could raise the compliance total to almost 40.

But the reformers are skeptical as they watch the slow pace. Under prod from Kenneth Bode, former commission research chief, a whole rash of lawsuits may develop in challenge to 1972 convention delegations which might be chosen by rules not fitting the guidelines.

Even without this organized undertaking, the Democrats' Miami Beach convention seems sure to feature many delegation challenges. At the reform commission's recent meeting, Paul Austin Ranney of the University of Wisconsin said:

"Nixon could be elected by default, because the convention may be tied up for four months by credentials challenges."

The hardliners are purists, and they are not prepared to give any state "A" for effort. They want the whole bag right now.

Editor's Mail Historical Marker To Note 'Battle'

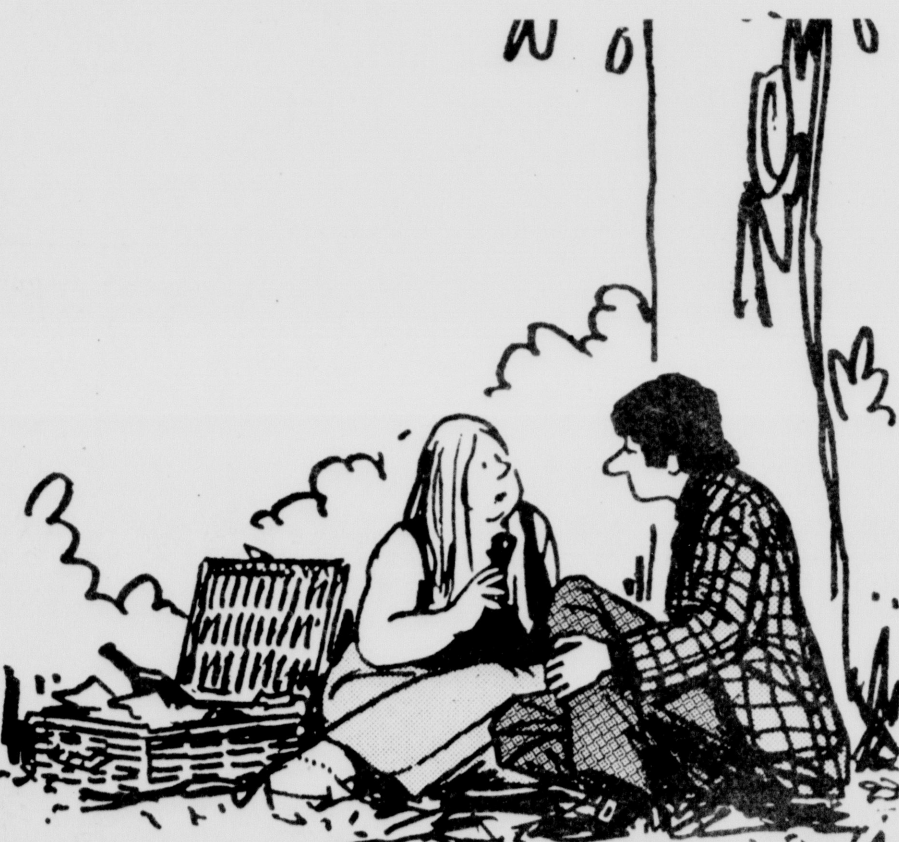

The last exposition in "Personal Slants" on the Civil War "Battle of Sedalia" was of particular interest, (although) the town had to wait a week to find out how it ended.

Sedalians are gaining new interest in our city's rich past. Perhaps the city can somehow reward us by marking the sites of such places as the old breastworks where Sedalia was proudly defended. Maybe an old cannon ball can be found to mark the spot.

Brookfield, Ill. Nails Down Second Crown

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Brookfield, Ill., and Mt. Healthy, Ohio, were on their way eastward Wednesday following the 1971 Central Sectional Senior Babe Ruth Tournament at Liberty Park Stadium.

For Illinois, they will have a brief stop in their home town before pushing on to the Tournament of Champions in Stamford, Conn. But for the Storm Club of suburban Cincinnati, the stay at home will be much longer.

Illinois went all the way through the winners' bracket of the Central Sectional by shutting out Ohio behind the two-hit pitching of Dave Wehrmeister, 6-0, and successfully defended their Senior Babe Ruth sectional title Tuesday night.

For the fourth time in as many meetings during the past two years, Brookfield, Ill., has swept the Storm Club aside and earned a berth in the Senior Babe Ruth World Series.

Illinois scored two runs in the fourth inning to break a scoreless tie Tuesday and coasted home to blank the Ohio state champions, 6-0.

Wehrmeister, one of the nation's leading college division pitchers in the NCAA, gave up a single to Greg Sewell in the first inning and another single to Mike Weiss in the third inning as he paved the way for Illinois to the Tournament of Champions.

Illinois will now battle with six other sectional winners, as well as host Stamford, Conn., in the championship playoffs, which open Aug. 12.

For Illinois, the big inning was yet to come. One inning later, Bill Arndt doubled off the right field wall to open the inning off Ohio starter Mike Weiss. Arndt was replaced by pinch runner Jim Filson. After Rick Ricksecker walked to put runners at first and second with none out in the inning, Mike Ourada struck out.

Shortstop Bob Szczecinski then tripled off the left field wall scoring both base runners.

Jim Tuttle was called upon by Ohio Manager Jim Kindt to try to put out the fire with Szczecinski at third base. Frank Hernandez then hit a ground ball back to Tuttle, who threw wide of first base allowing Szczecinski to come home. The speedy Hernandez advanced to third base on the three-base throwing error. Hernandez was then cut down at third base by catcher Mike Curley, but the majority of the damage had already been done as Ohio trailed going into the top of the sixth, 4-0.

Ohio was unable to mount a scoring threat in the sixth as Dave Wehrmeister sent the Ohio batters down in order.

Illinois loaded the bases in the bottom of the inning as Wehrmeister walked and Bouchard sacrificed him to second. Steve Schroeder reached first on an infield hit and Ricksecker walked to load the bases.

Bob Suer was then brought in to pitch to Jim Filson. Filson grounded a ball to second baseman Dan Staudigel, who tried to force Wehrmeister at the plate. However, his throw was off the mark, giving Illinois their final run of the game.

Bill Utz Eyes Big State Fair Pots

Bill Utz has racked up only one feature win so far this season in his number 98 sprint car, but the Sedalia pilot may set a new record this year for second-place finishes.

The lone feature victory, which came at Tri-City Speedway in Granite City, Ill., coupled with his second-place finishes there, have vaulted him into the track's point lead.

However, Utz is eyeing the big money once again this year at the Missouri State Fair, where over $20,000 in prize money is being offered in the sprint and super-modified divisions.

Utz has had success on both the mile and half-mile tracks at the Fairgrounds in recent years.

Last year he won the opening sprint show on the one-half mile track. Later in the week he placed fifth in the Missouri Senior Super-Modified Championship.

In 1969, Utz scored back-to-back seconds in the Senior Championship and the Missouri Futurity for sprint cars.

Bill Utz

Sedalia driver pocketed over $1,000 in winning the richest race at the Fair.

The veteran IMCA campaigner finished 13th in the points standing last season after he had nabbed fifth place nationally the year before. In 1968, Utz placed 13th in the IMCA standings.

The part-time blacksmith has been one of the most consistent sprint drivers over past years in IMCA competition. As the 1971 season opened, Utz stood in 29th place in the lifetime point total in the IMCA. However, on the active driver list Utz stands in 15th place.

Utz has not added to his point totals in the IMCA this season; in fact, he has not yet joined the IMCA this year. But you can bet he will before the Fair opens so he can go after a share of the prize money.

Modified races are scheduled for the nights of Aug. 21 and Aug. 27 on the half-mile; sprint car races are slated for the afternoon of Aug. 22 on the half-mile oval, with the Missouri Futurity for sprint cars set for the closing day of the Fair, Aug. 29.

But the biggest single-day payoff in Utz' career came one year earlier as Utz bested International Motor Contest Association veteran drivers around in the mile track and won the Missouri Futurity. The

SRO Crowd on Hand

Royals Knock Blue Out; A's Score Late for Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "I'm almost crazy from the pressure. This was the toughest of them all. Mercy, mercy, mercy me..."

This was Vida Blue talking... Vida Blue, the sensational left-hander of the Oakland Athletics, subdued, choked for words, his face bathed in disappointment.

He had failed for the second time to gain victory No. 20. He left after five innings and trailing 5-2.

The fact that the A's went on after his departure to beat the Kansas City Royals 7-5 Tuesday night before 35,623, largest crowd in Kansas City baseball history, and save him from absorbing his fifth defeat didn't seem to offer any consolation.

The fact the A's dressing room was little short of bedlam after their winning three-run ninth inning uprising, likewise, provided no cause for Blue to join in the celebration.

Blue sat there, seldom raising his eyes, a picture study of disbelief. Finally, he looked up and repeated it: "Mercy, mercy, mercy me..."

"Everybody wants to know if I'm going to win 20," Blue mumbled. "That's where all of the pressure is coming from."

"I just pitched like I always do. I felt good when I went out there. I thought I had my usual stuff."

"I threw good. I threw hard. I made some good pitches, and they got hits off of them... nine hits. That's what they got."

"All of the hits came on fast balls except Bob Oliver's home run that put us behind. It was a curve."

Blue let loose with a reasonable facsimile of a smile.

"When I needed the strikeout or the popup or the double play ball like I usually get, I didn't get it. The game is getting next to me mentally. I gave the manager some more gray hairs."

A's Manager Dick Williams analyzed the 22-year-old Blue's failure a little differently, this one and the 4-1 defeat Blue suffered at Cleveland last Friday night.

"Vida's had trouble with his curve the last couple of times out," Williams said. "He had a large amount of pitches in this game."

Sedalia Police Fall

In Tournament Tilt

HOUSTONIA — Marshall Junction whipped Sedalia Police in the opening game of the Houstonia Girls Khoury League Softball Invitational Tournament Tuesday night, 9-3. Melinda Berds was the winning pitcher; the loss was charged to Vickie Fry.

Houstonia topped Windsor in the other contest, 14-3, as Beverly Smiley was credited with the win. The loser was Mary Griefe.

one... 98. That's quite a bit for five innings."

Blue will try for the elusive 20th victory again Saturday against the Chicago White Sox in Oakland.

Oliver's home run, his fifth, came in the fourth and sent the Royals, who lost their eighth straight game, into a 3-2 lead. Besides the home run, Blue gave up a double, a single and a walk and committed a balk.

The Royals picked up their remaining two runs off Blue in the fifth on a single, an error, a double and another single.

The A's went into the ninth trailing 5-4. Tommy Davis hit a pinch single as the batter and Dick Green singled, pinch runner Blue Moon Odom going to third. With one out, Campy Campaneris singled off reliever Ted Abernathy to tie the game. Monday's double brought home the winning runs.

Of the Royals' eight-game losing streak, Manager Bob Lemon said:

"We're just in a rut. We've just lost to three of the league's top three teams. I think they know we're in the league."

About Blue, Lemon said:

"He's magic. Even when you get him out of there, they win."

Set Khoury Tourney

The Tri-County Khoury League Softball Tournament for the debutante division will open Thursday at Centennial Park.

The opening game will feature Marshall Junction and Smithton at 7:30 p.m.; Knob Noster and Houstonia will play at 9 p.m.

S-M Sporting Goods, who drew a bye in the first round, will play the winner of the Marshall Junction-Smithton contest Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

The tournament runs through Monday at the Lions Diamond.

Throw Goes Wide

St. Louis Cardinals' shortstop Ted Kubiak (1) throws wild trying to avoid high-sliding Ed Spiezio of San Diego in the sixth inning of the Cards-Padres' game, Tuesday night in St. Louis. Spiezio was forced at second on a hit by Larry Stahl to second baseman Ted Sizemore. Sizemore threw to Kubiak for the force-out, but Spiezio slid into Kubiak to break up the double play. The Padres downed the Cards in the contest, 6-1. (UPI)

Steve Arlin Holds Cards to 4 Hits

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It isn't the year for scoring runs for the San Diego Padres, but all that was forgotten Tuesday night in Busch Stadium.

Fortified by Steve Arlin's four-hit pitching, the Padres erupted early and often to blister the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-1, with a 13-hit attack.

Rookie Garry Jestadt's two singles and a double led the attack that included doubles by Bob Barton and Nate Colbert and triples by Clarence Gason and Larry Stahl.

By the time the assault was completed the bespectacled Arlin, a practicing dentist, was coasting to his sixth victory against 13 defeats.

"It really relieves the pressure when you can go out there with three or four runs," said Arlin, who beat the Cardinals for the first time in three tries.

The former Ohio State right-hander, throwing more fast balls than usual, needed only 98 pitches for his seventh complete game.

Arlin, who has four shutouts among seven major league triumphs, had a shutout until Cardinal newcomer Ted Kubiak hit a one-out triple in the eighth inning and scored on Ted Sizemore's single.

By then, however, the Padres had a 6-0 lead built at the expense of St. Louis left-hander Jerry Reuss (10-11) and three successors.

The Cardinals, who a night earlier lost rookie outfielder Luis Melendez for at least 15 days with a torn hamstring muscle, played the game without center fielder Jose Cruz.

Cruz suffered a broken nose in an auto accident on the way home from Monday night's game and was kept out of action.

Matty Alou filled in at center field and first baseman Joe Hague in right, with reserve Bob Burda at first base. Arlin held Alou, Joe Torre and Ted Simmons hitless, however, indicating aches and pains weren't the only Cardinal difficulties.

Ament Appointed As SFCC Coach

Mr. Larry Ament, American history and national government instructor at State Fair Community College, was recently appointed to the position of golf coach for the coming 1971-72 academic year. Mr. Ament will be replacing Coach Bill Barton in this capacity.

President Fred Davis in making this announcement stated, "this appointment should benefit both varsity sports in allowing Mr. Ament to pursue his interest in building a stronger golf program at a period of the year when Coach Barton is spending his time on player recruitment."

All-Stars Play In Joplin

The Sedalia American Division Little League Majors All-Star team leaves Thursday for Joplin, Mo. to play in the sectional tournament.

Sedalia, Crystal City-Festus (Twin-Cities), the Oklahoma state Little League Baseball champions and host Joplin will make up the four teams entered in the playoffs.

The winner will move on to Omaha, Neb. in quest of the 1971 Little League World Series championship.

Sedalia will play Twin-Cities in the opening game of the sectional Thursday, while Oklahoma and Joplin will battle in the other first-round contest.

Catcher Skip McGuire led the local Little League squad in the district playoffs last week in Carrollton. He pounded out 12 hits in 15 trips to the plate to set a torrid batting average of .800.

Jim Gill swatted two homers in the series; McGuire and Mike Ulmer hit home runs also.

As a team, Sedalia scored 55 runs on 55 hits in sweeping past the other teams in the district playoffs.

Holmes Is Signed By SFCC Mentor

Steve Holmes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn W. Holmes, 1500 West Fifth Street, has been signed to an athletic letter of intent to State Fair Community College, Head Baseball Coach Foster McGuire in making the announcement Wednesday, said he was pleased with Holmes' selection of SFCC.

Holmes is a 1971 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, where he earned three varsity letters in baseball and two in basketball.

This past spring, Holmes was named to the honorable mention list on the All-Central Missouri Conference basketball squad.

He was recently selected as a member of the Sedalia Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars who played in the Central Sectional Senior Babe Ruth Tournament at Liberty Park Stadium. In that series the 6'1" infielder played second base.

Bridgeton Woman Leads Skeet Shoot

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The broken birds fell among the raindrops, and there were plenty of both of the World Skeet Championships Tuesday. Twenty-three shooters had perfect scores in 20 gauge competition at the end of the day.

Those who broke 100 targets out of 100 included:

Jay Gerlich, Des Moines, Iowa; Harold Beck, Midwest City, Okla.; Karla Roberts, Bridgeton, Mo.

Officials have scheduled the shootoff in this event today. Miss Roberts broke 100 straight to take the lead in the ladies' division.

Bob McAdoo's Basket Carries Yanks, 81-79

CALI, Colombia (AP) — U.S. heroes are dead in men's gymnastics, staggering in baseball and fighting for dear life in basketball at the Pan American Games.

That, for USA faithful, is the good news.

The United States had a 21-11 edge over Castro's kids in gold medals and a 52-39 bulge overall, but Cuba had the USA on the ropes both in baseball and basketball.

Brazil almost sent the American cagers home, but 6-foot-10 Bob McAdoo of the University of North Carolina ripped a jumper to save the Tuesday game, 81-79 in overtime.

Even at that, using the complicated international playoff system, the USA will be finished if Brazil happens to upset Cuba by more than three points. Cuba earlier shocked the Yanks 73-69.

Cuba's favored baseball team got a clutch two-run single by big Armando Capiro after shabby USA fielding loaded the bases in the seventh inning to edge the Americans 4-3.

Cuba pulled another in its line of international athletic surprises by capturing the gold medal in men's gymnastics, long a producer of medals for the United States.

The bleak afternoon became the bright evening as American track and field performers grabbed six golds in eight events to make it 14-of-16 in men's events since the games opened.

Javelin thrower Cary Feldmann of Seattle, 100-meter dash heroine Iris Davis of Pompano Beach, Fla., 400-meter hurdles flash Ralph Mann of San Diego, and 800 meters runner Ken Swenson of San Pedro, Calif., all won golds in record performances.

Larry Young took 4½ hours to do it, but the Sibley, Mo., resident claimed a gold for the USA in the 50-kilometer walk.

Young was the Games' first repeat gold medal winner in track.

The United States' gold medal opportunities increase later in the week when swimming and diving gets going full throttle. With 33 golds available, the Yanks are expected to load up their pockets.

Boxing continued to develop as a USA strong point as heavyweight Duane Bobick, one of 12 brothers in a Bowls, Minn., family, scored a first-round knockout over Colombia's Wesley Zuleta to lead three men into the semifinals.

The American fighters are undefeated. Also among the winners Tuesday night were South Carolina convict Bobby Lee Hunter in the flyweight division and Ray Russell among the light-heavies.

At KC Workshop

Say Blacks Need Personal Identity

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Frustrations, insults and exploitation have been common experiences of many black athletes attending predominantly white colleges and universities, a number of black coaches attending a workshop agreed Tuesday.

The two-day workshop on minority athletes was unique, according to a spokesman at the University of Missouri-Kansas City, because white coaches were on hand from several small colleges in Missouri and Kansas to hear the frustrations verbalized.

Edward Beasley, director of the Ethnic and Black Awareness Center at UMKC, which sponsored the program, said its purpose was to demonstrate for white coaches what black athletes must cope with on their campuses.

"We also hope to demonstrate the black athlete's needs of identity, whether through something like Afro haircuts, dashikis or the formation of black student unions," Beasley said.

Dwight Reed, athletic director of historically black Lincoln University at Jefferson City, Mo., said black sensitivity is something "you coaches have to wrestle with; you've got to face it."

One of the white coaches asked Prentice Gautt, former St. Louis Cardinal running back who is now an assistant coach at the University of Missouri, "How can a white coach go about understanding the black athlete's views?"

Gautt advised the coach to first become acquainted with the individual, even by inviting him to the coach's home for an evening.

In addition to black and white coaches from 13 colleges and universities — 11 of them in Missouri and Kansas — about eight Kansas City area high schools were represented, plus Kirkwood, Mo., High School.

Reed expressed disappointment at the turnout.

"Individuals we should be talking to are those who don't think there's a problem or who don't want to face the problem. These individuals aren't here."

Interracial dating on campus and the generally hostile reaction to it in small college communities were prime topics.

A coach from central Kansas said: "Now I've got a woman calling me to tell me her daughter's been dating one of my colored boys and she wants it stopped."

"I tell her it's none of my business who she dates."

"Then what," Reed asked.

"Well, I just hung up," the coach replied.

"That's all you could do," Reed said. "It's none of your business whom she dates."

Questioned about problems he encountered while playing college ball at the University of Oklahoma, Gautt said:

"I attribute a lot of my ability to cope with problems (at OU) to Bud Wilkinson (former head football coach). That's how I got through the University of Oklahoma."

Gautt said when he played at Oklahoma in the late 1950s there were only seven black women on campus. He eventually dated a white woman, "although I never knew how much hostility it caused on the team."

Gautt recalled Wilkinson stopped a football practice and said:

"This could be a good football team if we could all learn to be men. We could be men by saying to his (Gautt's) face the things that have been said behind his back."

"There was a lot of embarrassment," Gautt said, "but from that point we went on to have a fairly good team."

American Golf Classic Opens

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, two of pro golf's millionaires, have a chance to seize the 1971 money winning lead in the $150,000 American Golf Classic starting Thursday.

A field of 103 will tee off in the first of four rounds in the 72-hole tournament over the par 70, 7,180-yard Firestone South course.

The low 70 and ties will survive the 36-hole cut Friday and the final round Sunday will be nationally televised (ABC).

Exhibition Games

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Colonels announced Tuesday an exhibition basketball schedule that includes home games with the Milwaukee Bucks, champions of the National Basketball Association, and the New York Knicks and Baltimore Bullets of the NBA.

The Bullets will be here Sept. 22 at Freedom Hall.

On Oct. 8 Virginia will meet Memphis in the first game and Kentucky will play Milwaukee in the second game. On Oct. 9 the Colonels will play New York.

ner Lee Trevino is getting a Texas hero's welcome this week in El Paso, Nicklaus and Palmer both have a shot at passing him on the PGA dollar list.

Nicklaus, second with $187,763 to Trevino's $197,219, can move on top with the $30,000 first prize, $17,100 for second or $10,650 third place money.

Palmer, third with $184,799 in winnings this year, needs a first or second to move past Trevino.

All of the former Classic champions except 1961 winner Jay Hebert will take part in the 10-year-old tournament. Besides Trevino and Hebert, No. 4 money winner Gary Player will bypass this stop. Player is resting at his South African home. Billy Casper, the third golfing millionaire, also is not competing here.

Frank Beard won the 1970 title with a four-under-par 276 despite no practice rounds. Beard was home in Louisville while his wife had a baby the Tuesday of the tournament.

The field will be completed with the top five finishers in the satellite Little American Golf Classic, which wound up its 54 holes today on the Firestone North layout.

Qualifying Lead Held By Boys From Midwest

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — Two teen-age golfers from the midwest shared the halfway lead in qualifying rounds for 64 berths in the U.S.G.A. National Junior Amateur championships today.

Clark Stevens, 17, of Wichita, Kan., and Fred Farris, also 17, of Tulsa, Okla., matched par 70s Tuesday to lead the field of 150 golfers at the Manor Country Club here.

The low 64 scorers after 18 holes today enter match play Thursday. Tight and wet conditions kept scores relative high Tuesday and indicated the cut tonight would come somewhere in the high 150s.

Farris, a 6-foot-3 high school senior, missed only one fairway on the 6,410-yard course as he carded two bogeys and two birdies for his 36-34-70.

Stevens, who is headed for Southern Methodist University, recorded his third birdie on the last hole with a 15-foot putt to card a 34-36-70.

Long Recovery Period

Question Future Of Chiefs' Holub

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The "holler guy" of the Kansas City Chiefs who became something of an institution with the club, E. J. Holub, said Tuesday he'll be back in Kansas City soon. "I gotta see the boys play," Holub remarked from Methodist Hospital here where he underwent knee surgery for the

To Discuss Money Woes Of Senators

CHICAGO (AP) — The American League is expected to discuss the financially troubled Washington baseball franchise Wednesday when the joint baseball meetings are expected to end.

"We didn't discuss the Washington situation at all today," said president Joe Cronin Tuesday night. "But we expect to bring up the subject tomorrow. In fact we didn't take up any league matters, we simply discussed the commissioner's agenda."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn held a joint meeting of the American and National Leagues Tuesday in which a variety of topics were discussed including promotions, films, drug education, broadcast, the performance bonus rule and cutting down on spring training.

"The only matter on which action is expected," said Kuhn, "is the shortening of spring training."

When the American League continues its meeting Wednesday, Kuhn expects to be called in when the Washington matter comes up.

However, he added he didn't expect any definite action to come up in the Washington matter.

eight time Monday. "I reckon I'll go stand in line so I'll be sure to get a ticket."

There seems to be a growing question whether Holub will ever suit-up with the Chiefs again. The possibilities seemed slim before he returned to Texas for surgery late last week. They didn't seem to improve Monday.

Holub says he came through the surgery very well, admitting "It still smarts pretty good."

But he said the surgery was more extensive than he had expected. He said the repair job included both ligaments, removal of two spurs and a bone chip.

He will be hospitalized the remainder of the week, then stay in Lubbock until he is sure he can get around before returning to his ranch 250 miles away.

"It'll take a lot longer to recover from this one than I thought it would," he admits. "But I've got confidence in my doctor. He got me this far, and

Early Chiefs' football fans will remember Holub riding through the streets of Kansas City, perched on a convertible with other members of the old Dallas Texans, waving a cowboy hat and shouting at the top of his lungs in his Texas drawl.

In those days one could question Kansas City's acceptance of a professional football team, but not of E. J. He was a smash success with both the avid fan and the man on the street.

Those who know Holub even slightly could expect the answer he gave Tuesday when asked about his immediate plans.

"Well, I'm gonna be an old man. I'm gonna get me a rock-in' chair and put it on the front porch. I'll rock a little, chew a little, spit a little and whittle a little. And I'll say 'How y'all' to everyone who comes by."

And it's a pretty sure bet he'll do just that.

Duane Thomas Walks Out

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Duane Thomas is alive and kicking and living in Los Angeles—probably.

The National Football League's rookie of the year in the National Conference, traded by Dallas to the New England Patriots after leading the Cowboys to the Super Bowl, vanished from the Pats' training camp Tuesday and flew to the West Coast.

Thomas eluded newsmen at Los Angeles International Airport and was apparently enscioned in his Los Angeles apartment today.

"They don't want me. They asked me to leave," was all the 23-year-old running back said at Boston's Logan Airport after packing his bags and departing from camp at the University of Massachusetts in nearby Amherst.

Patriot's General Manager Upton Bell would only comment:

"On advice of our lawyers, I cannot say any more about this situation at this time. I will say only that this is not due to contract negotiations."

It was a contract dispute that brought Thomas to the Pats. He refused to report to Dallas' training camp, seeking renegotiation of his three-year contract, reportedly for $80,000 a year. The Cowboys said no.

Then they traded Thomas and two other players to the Pats for running back Carl Garrett and New England's No. 1 draft choice in 1972.

Garrett, meanwhile, left the Cowboys' training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif., but for a different reason. He returned to Boston to fulfill a military reserve commitment.

Several other players were also on the move Tuesday.

The New Orleans Saints traded seven-year tight end Ray Poage to Atlanta, the Falcons acquired second-year defensive back Tony Plummer from St. Louis and the Kansas City Chiefs sent veteran safety Goldie Sellers to Houston, all for undisclosed draft choices.

Oakland's star receiver Warren Wells, absent from the Raiders' camp Monday, was back with the team without explaining his one-day disappearance.

And Dave Parks, New Orleans' No. 1 tight end last season, reported to the Saints' camp but refused to sign a contract and did not practice.

Passed Ball Scores Run

New York Mets' Tim Foli (19) is safe at the plate on a passed ball in the fourth inning of the second game of Tuesday's twinbill between New York and Cincinnati. Redlegs' pitcher Jim Merritt takes a throw from catcher Johnny Bench, but Foli scored before the tag could be made. The teams split the doubleheader with the Reds taking the opener, 5-2, and the Mets posting a 9-4 win in the second contest. (UPI)

SACB Budgeted, Given New Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — After doing virtually nothing for months, the Subversive Activities Control Board has been voted a $450,000 budget and congressional clearance to wield broad new powers President Nixon wants it to have.

The SACB created most of the controversy Tuesday night as the Senate passed, 46 to 44, a $4.1-billion appropriation for the departments of State, Commerce and Justice.

The bill was sent to President Nixon, who had issued an executive order granting new authority to the SACB, which has had almost nothing to do since the Supreme Court overruled its authority to hunt, register and publicize Communist organizations.

Under the Nixon order, the SACB could decide after hearings whether any organization is totalitarian, fascist, communist, subversive, "or whether it has adopted a policy of unlawfully advocating the commission of acts of force or violence to deny others their rights."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., sought to restore an amendment forbidding use of the appropriation to implement Nixon's July 2 executive order.

"You can have under this executive order... this board prying into every group whose views this board considers intellectually disturbing to the government," Ervin said.

"It is alien to the American system of government... It reflects the spirit of McCarthyism..."

But Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., said the constitutionality of the order, and the authority of the President to broaden the role of the SACB without congressional action, will have to be settled by the courts.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., said the President is only trying to make use of a moribund agency, which has a five-member board, each paid $36,000 a year. He said the board worked three days during the six months prior to the executive order.

Promise To Reveal CIA Funding Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today promised new disclosures about how the Central Intelligence Agency bankrolls military operations in Laos.

Among the things to be made public, reliable sources said, is how part of CIA funds are hidden in budgets of other agencies.

They said this was among subjects discussed in a rare 3½-hour secret Senate session June 7, a censored transcript of which will be published today in the Congressional Record.

Publication of the transcript comes two days after release of a Foreign Relations Committee staff report that was the basis of the June 7 session.

The report disclosed that $70 million in CIA funds was spent last year to support a 30,000-man force of Laotian irregulars, considered a more effective fighting force than the Royal Lao Army, and that most of about $66 million went to the CIA to support Thai troops in Laos.

The report to the Foreign Relations Committee by James W. Lowenstein and Richard M. Moose, who visited Laos in late April and early May, said the military situation there is continuing to deteriorate despite stepped-up U.S. aid.

The report and the transcript were declassified after five weeks of negotiations between the Senate and the executive branch.

The Sedalia Scottish Rite Club will hold its August business meeting Thursday, Aug. 5th at 7:30 P.M. at the Masonic Temple. All Scottish Rite Masons are urged to attend as special business will be handled.

Schedule Telephone Conference

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A telephone conference of the Kansas Finance Council was scheduled by Gov. Robert Docking for this afternoon to consider an extra appropriation for Atty. Gen. Vern Miller's war on drug pushers.

The 1971 Legislature put a limit on expenditures by the attorney general's office, regardless of where the money comes from.

The Governor's Committee on Criminal Administration last Thursday approved $24,967 in federal funds for Miller's crackdown on the drug traffic. Miller may have the approval of the Finance Council in order to spend the money.

Docking is chairman of the council and its only Democratic member. Miller also is a Democrat.

Other members of the council are Lt. Gov. Reynolds Shultz, and four top leaders of the Legislature.

Docking's announcement came after the emergency meeting said:

"The attorney general needs additional financial assistance in order to maintain his attack on the drug pushers in Kansas."

"Local government officials request the attorney general's assistance almost daily in fighting drug problems in their communities. The attorney general is limited on the number of undercover agents he can provide these local areas. Money to make buys is needed."

The statement also said it is important to the people of Kansas that Miller be allowed to continue his attack on the drug pushers, peddlers and dealers.

Gobbledygook Is Growing Concern in Boggling Bureaucracy

By RICHARD E. MEYER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry B. Quill was a bureaucrat. He wasn't always a bureaucrat, and it took him a while to learn the ways of the maze.

Poor, unprepossessing, awkward and tie-ridden, he went to work last year at the Technological Implementation Agency in the Department of Unencumbered Analytical Allocations.

Henry B. Quill is fictitious. So is his agency. But his troubles, his triumphs—and what finally happened to Henry B. Quill—show some very real peculiarities of government bureaucracy and how bureaucracy is creating a billion-dollar problem.

The problem, says a congressional committee, is gobbledygook—a growing glut of government garble galloping out of control, filling millions of cubic feet of government files and helping to cause a paperwork blizzard costing taxpayers $8 billion a year.

Gobbledygook, says the government, has got to go.

But making that happen, say the bureaucrats, is "more easily promulgated with dynamic confrontational determination than effectuated with maximized definitive success."

Consider, for example, Henry B. Quill.

On his second day of work, in a memo to his boss, Henry suggested, "Let's cut our budget." "No, no, no, Quill," stormed the boss. "It's not, 'Let's cut our budget.' If you're going to suggest a ridiculous thing like that, at least suggest it in a professional way."

"After careful scrutiny of available data, the undersigned cannot fail but to offer as an interim proposal additional study into the possibility of taking such steps as are commensurate with the actual budgetary situation, not in response to an ideal which does not exist, particularly with regard to the need to modify monetary expenditures, but possibly effecting certain economies in the unitization of technological implementation."

"Oh," said Henry.

He hauled up his socks, took a deep breath and tried again. He expanded short words into long ones. "Use" into "utilize," "end" into "finalize," and "make" into "fabricate." He multiplied words "Laws" became "statutory provisions," "after—subsequent to," and "prohibit—mitigate against." And he ballooned words into carefully crafted phrases that took a quiet pride in standing off by themselves and gazing into their own opacity.

Soon he had the knack. "Multivalued decision problems are so common," he wrote, "that the objective and criteria of these decisions are best formulated in a way that takes uncertainty explicitly into account." This can be done, he added, "by subjecting the economic optimum to the restriction of avoiding immoderate possible losses and by minimizing maximum possible losses."

Quill had mastered the mother tongue of government. He smothered his verbs, camouflaged his subjects and hid everything in an undergrowth of modifiers. He braided, beaded and fringed, giving elaborate expression to negligible thoughts, weaseling, hedging and announcing the obvious. He spread generalities like flood waters in a long, low valley. He sprinkled everything with aspects, feasibilities, alternatives, effectuations, analyses, maximizations, implementations, contraindications and aperturances. At his best, complete immobility set in, lasting sometimes for dozens of pages.

When real bureaucrats do that sort of thing, the pages pile up. A House Post Office and Civil Service subcommittee said four years ago that if one government record were burned each second, it would take 2,000 years to destroy them all. Some 225,000 government employees spend most of their working day tucking documents into 25 million cubic feet of files, the subcommittee said, and the executive offices alone have two million filing cabinets.

The government spends $8 billion a year on paperwork, the

Gallop Garble

James H. Boren runs NATAPROBU — the National Association of Professional Bureaucrats, and he is pictured here in front of the association's official seal. Members' three part philosophy is: "When in charge, ponder; when in trouble, delegate; when in doubt, mumble." The association is run as a lark, but it is very real. So is the problem it spoofs, gobbledygook. A Congressional committee says so, in 220 pages.

lion a year on paperwork, the subcommittee said, and $1.5 billion of it goes for writing a billion letters a year. The subcommittee said $100 million to $200 million could be saved each year by writing more concisely.

Not to be lopsided, the subcommittee hailed some "success stories." The Navy and Marine Corps, for instance, have eliminated more than 18,000 internal directives and the Federal Aviation Agency has reduced its files by 5.5 million pages. But the subcommittee report was 70 pages long. And a report by the full committee a year earlier ran to 220 pages. It covered hearings that filled five volumes. The study was aptly entitled "The Federal Paperwork Jungle."

So prolific was Henry B. Quill that before long he was nominated for the highest honor in the National Association of Professional Bureaucrats. "Congratulations!" NATAPROBU told him in a letter. "Your continued efforts toward constructive utilization of prolusionary processes as they fit within the guidelines of the orbital dialogues that contribute to inter-fer avoidance in decision-making have gained you consideration in our annual selection of nominees for the Order of the Bird."

NATAPROBU, a very real organization, run as a lark by James H. Boren, 45, who worked for nine years as a middle-level official in the Agency for International Development (AID), has a three-part philosophy for its members: "When in charge, ponder; when in trouble, delegate; when in doubt, mumble."

The last was Quill's forte. He was nominated for the "Bird" in keeping with NATAPROBU's aim "to give recognition to articulate fingertappers of the world who, by their steadfast dedication to the principles of dynamic inactivity, have kept things from happening and thereby prevented mistakes from being made."

Other real-life NATAPROBU nominees for the Order of the Bird have been:

—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, "in recognition of his contributions to the state of the communications art and to the orbital prolusionary processes as finalized in direct trajectories." Agnew didn't make it to the banquet the association holds each year, but he wired:

"Rueful regrets, a thousand apologies and prothonotary pretexts to NATAPROBU on this auspicious occasion. Order of Bird elliteratively appreciated, but in all meiotic modesty must recommend others as possessing prolusionary processes more deserving."

—Mayor John Lindsay of New York, for the 56 steps it takes to hire a person in five of the city's agencies and the 71 steps required to purchase such items as a desk for a city office or a truck for the city's fleet. (You think we're kidding, don't you?)

"It appears," wrote Boren, "that no other city in the United States can match the outstanding record of New York in the development of orchestrated procedural clearances and decision avoidance patterns." Replied Robert Laird, a Lindsay aide: "No authorization has been issued for the tendering by your organization of an award to the City of New York. In the absence of such authorization-to-offer-award, form B00-2-U, it would not conform to approved proper procedures for the city to contemplate reception of the Order of the Bird. I might add that there are 82 steps required to obtain form B00-2-U."

—John Brayton Redecker, an official in the Bureau of Inter-American Affairs in the State Department, for a country analysis and strategy paper prepared for a symposium of the Military Operations Research Society in San Diego, Calif., in November, 1969. In a chapter entitled, "The Qualitative Quantitative Interface," Redecker wrote: "Diplomatic initiatives for example, while high-capacity policy instruments, are in no sense resource intensive. Their dollar requirements cannot be meshed with the resources called for by economic assistance programs, for example; although both are palpable instruments for achieving policy objectives and both, of course, have price tags attached to them. One is faced, therefore, with a variety of incommensurable dollars, the summation of which has no practical meaning for defining optimal policy through an evaluation of alternative resource mixes." Redecker accepted the "Bird" for all of the "trembling, shining bureaucrats" at the State Department.

Quill was thrilled. He waited anxiously while NATAPROBU's nine coordinating committees considered his nomination.

Then a startling thing happened. To his horror, the fictitious Quill discovered that flesh and blood Dean Calvin Linton at George Washington University had written a book for the Internal Revenue Service, saying that a lot of government writing was pretty bad.

In fact, Linton likened it to writing "by a machine—and a somewhat morose one at that."

Worse, Quill found out that people like Linton, Lucille Boyd at IRS, Jackie Sutton at the Civil Service Commission, Paul Kunberger at the Pentagon, Sam Bingman at the Interstate Commerce Commission and others at the Veterans Administration, Agriculture Department, General Services Administration and a variety of the departments and agencies around town were changing the style poor Henry had so painstakingly learned.

Not that the problem was peculiar to the U.S. government. Linton was quick to point out that Sir Ernest Gowers, British authority on writing, quotes reports about "a discussion of sheep dogs in the Minister's room" and an "official statement on the marriage of German prisoners with girls made in the House of Commons."

Nor was the problem peculiar to government. Coordinators for the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice talk about "militant and creative nonviolent disobedience." A learned journal says, "Development concepts, whether attuned to current management practices or not, particularly those of an institutional nature, are often applicable to such sociological and economic structures as may be necessary for the establishment of equitable adjustment of all psychic needs in a typical administrative complex."

Nevertheless, it took an official in the government, Linton says, to write a memo saying, "All officers wishing to take advantage of the girls in the secretarial pool should call extension 81." And it took a government personnel officer to write a progress report on a typist saying, "She's willing to struggle if given the opportunity."

The change of style was no small struggle, either. As Walter Salant, authority on writing economics at the Brookings Institution, concedes: "Anyone who writes about writing puts himself in the position of a boxer who leads with his chin." And, sure enough, some of the government pugilists set themselves up for a tap on the jaw.

Brig. Gen. William A. Knowlton, secretary of the Army general staff, for example, instructed writers of correspondence for Chief of Staff William C. Westmoreland to "avoid stock phrases." Then, in the same memo, Knowlton listed 12 stock phrases as "typical expressions of the chief of staff."

Other setbacks came from agency heads themselves. "In some government offices, believe it or not," says Linton, "this exact attitude has been expressed to me: 'If we begin to teach writing and to make a lot of fuss about it, we will, sure as fate, get wild deviations from our standard approved style.' In other words, people will begin to say 'borrow' instead of 'procure on a loan basis'..."

Indeed, no less an authority than George Orwell has said that if the government had written Ecclesiastes, "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong..." would have come out: "Objective consideration of contemporary phenomena compels the conclusion that success or failure in competitive activities exhibits no tendency to be commensurate with innate capacity."

All of this came as a blow to Henry B. Quill. Particularly when he realized that some of the examples the authorities were using to show poor writing were his own. He mustered all of his concentration and set to work unlearning what he had learned.

After months of struggle, he was writing phrases, sentences, even paragraphs as riveting as bank errors in your favor. "Militate against" became "prohibit." "Securing by dishonest means" became "stealing." And "appearing to have encountered a favorable response" became "approved."

"Quill!" shrieked the boss, storming into his office. "What are you doing? You can't write like that around here!"

"But, but, boss..."

"Quill, I believe a termination is in order."

"I'm fired!"

"No, no, no. You're not fired. In the best interests of your career, your services are being dispensed with."

"I believe you hit the nail on the head, sir."

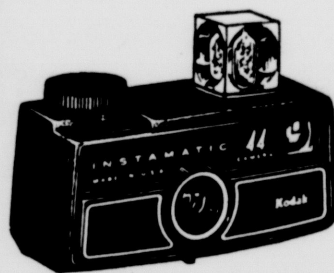

"No, no, no, Quill. I didn't hit the nail on the head. I partook of a manifest relevancy."

Astronaut Worden Takes First Deep Space Walk

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Alfred M. Worden took man's first walk in deep space today, floating like a feather nearly 200,000 miles from the earth as he retrieved two film canisters from the rear of the striking Apollo 15 spacecraft.

A television camera relayed clear pictures to earth as Worden, bundled in a stiff pressure suit and attached to a 25-foot lifeline, made three 15-foot-trips to the camera bay, twice to extract the film and once to inspect equipment.

He stepped through the open hatch at 11:40 a.m. EDT and was back inside the cabin just 18 minutes later, the 10th man to take a walk in space, and the first to do so that far from his home planet.

With the hatch open, the entire cabin was exposed to the vacuum of space, so David R. Scott and James B. Irwin also wore protective spacesuits.

Irwin poked the upper part of his body out of the hatch to guide Worden's life support hose, to photograph him and to help him move the film canisters into the cabin.

"It's remarkable," Worden exclaimed of the breathtaking vista of sun, stars, sky and moon around him. He was about 197,000 miles from earth and 48,000 from the moon.

He looked back at Irwin, silhouetted against the fast-receding moon and said: "You look absolutely fantastic against that moon back there. That is really the most unbelievable, remarkable thing."

The television pictures showed him obviously enjoying the stroll, at times kicking himself off the side of the craft and spinning completely around in his silent, weightless world.

The command ship Endeavour was streaking toward home at more than 2,000 miles an hour after six days of lunar exploration.

Worden took only a few seconds to move along handrails to the camera bay. He first removed a 23-pound cassette from a mapping camera, returned to the hatch and handed it to Irwin.

On the second trip to the bay he called a "rest stop" and inspected a scientific experiment boom and a camera sensor which had been giving them some trouble. He reported a cover jammed on the boom and could discover nothing wrong with the sensor.

At the request of Mission Control, Worden made a third trip to inspect the camera bay for anything unusual. He reported nothing.

The television camera showed the space walker moving rather clumsily at first as he moved outside.

As he accustomed himself to the strange, eerie environment, he floated easily in a world visited by only nine previous men — six Americans and three Russians.

Earlier today, Mission Control calculated Apollo 15 was on such an accurate course that it canceled a planned course correction.

Worden's space walk was necessary because the camera bay is jettisoned before re-entry and does not return to earth with the spacemen.

The film cassettes contain about two miles of high resolution pictures of nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface, including what are expected to be the best pictures yet of the hidden backside.

Before opening the hatch, the astronauts depressurized the cabin, bleeding out oxygen until the atmosphere inside the craft matched the vacuum outside.

On opening the hatch, the astronauts tossed a few bags of garbage and unwanted articles into space.

The explorers were awakened at 5:20 a.m. and told they would not have to make a small course correction because they were on target for Saturday's landing in the Pacific Ocean.

"You're so close to course we're going to give you the Vasco da Gama navigation award," capsule communicator Joe Allen said.

Da Gama, a late 15th century Portuguese navigator, was the first European to sail to India.

At 7:49 a.m., Apollo 15 sped through a "twilight zone" where it escaped the influence of lunar gravity and fell into the sphere of earth gravity. That was 204,138 miles from earth and 38,410 miles from the moon and the craft began accelerating.

A television camera is mounted outside to relay pictures to earth as Worden moves into a silent, weightless world which has been braved previously by only nine men—six Americans and three Russians. All were in earth orbit.

In addition, eight Americans now have walked on the moon, which has a gravity field one-sixth that of earth's.

Worden's stroll is necessary because the bay is jettisoned before re-entry and does not return to earth with the astronauts.

Stroll in Silent Space

holds the umbilical (tether) line and monitors the operation. The event, man's first "walk" in deep space, took place about 200,000 miles from earth. (UPI)

Correct Report On POW Airlift

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Scandinavian airline said today a report that American military officials had asked the airline to fly 187 American prisoners of war from Laos to Europe was incorrect.

The earlier report had brought a flood of official denials from American and North Vietnamese officials.

The airline said today its office in West Germany had been approached in mid-July by a "private individual" who wanted to arrange a charter flight from Laos to Rome "for 187 passengers."

"It was never mentioned that the category of passengers was military personnel," SAS said in a statement released today.

The airline said it made preliminary arrangements and was ready to sign a contract, but this "has been called off by the private contact of SAS in Germany."

The "private individual" was not identified by name or nationality.

The report of a prospective POW flight was first published Wednesday night in Sweden's biggest newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, which said the flight would be on Aug. 12.

This was followed by an announcement from an SAS spokesman that U.S. military authorities in West Germany had asked to charter a DC8 to airlift 187 POWs from Vientiane, the Laotian capital, to Rome by way of Bangkok.

Dagens Nyheter charged SAS with "giving way to political pressure to soft pedal the whole thing."

Editor in Chief Boerje Dahlqvist maintained the newspaper's reported, attributed to "sources," was "wholly correct as it stands," but refused to identify his sources. He did not specify what "political pressure" he claimed had been applied.

SAS spokesman Jack Herbert said: "Nuts to Dagens Nyheter. I can't give any explanation about this whole thing other than to say that a lot of people were unavailable when this story broke and that we could not sort things out until now."

In Washington, President Nixon's news secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, said the U.S. government "has not been informed of any such plan, nor has the U.S. participated in negotiating a plan such as suggested in the Swedish newspaper."

Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator at the Paris peace talks, called the reports "excessive imagination," while Truong Gia Nhan, an attache at the North Vietnamese Embassy in Stockholm, termed the report a "fabrication" and said it was "totally unfounded."

Thuy, speaking to newsmen as he entered the 124th session of the peace talks, said unless President Nixon accepts the Communists' peace plan "the list of captured military men, far from becoming shorter will only lengthen."

U.S. military authorities in West Germany said they had not heard of any plan to fly 187 American prisoners of war out of Vientiane on an SAS charter jet.

Wednesday, before the airline's report, Nixon told a news conference that the United States was "very actively pursuing negotiations on Vietnam in established channels."

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Sedalia, Mo., Thursday, Aug. 5, 1971

Vol. 103, No. 155

20 Pages—Ten Cents

Limitation Is Placed On ABM Project Work

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WASHINGTON — The Senate Armed Services Committee approved a proposal Wednesday to reduce the scope of Safeguard ABM work planned for the Sedalia area.

By a vote of 12 to 3, the committee approved a resolution by Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., to limit the Safeguard work at Whiteman AFB and Warren AFB, Wyo., to "advance" preparations only.

The full House of Representatives had earlier voted to give the Nixon administration full Safeguard authorization, providing for construction of a Safeguard complex in the Whiteman area.

The Armed Services Committee action will now go to the full Senate for a vote. A joint Senate-House committee will then likely be formed to resolve differences in the two authorization bills.

Before adopting the Stennis resolution, the Armed Services Committee rejected a proposal by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., to limit Safeguard deployment to the two initial sites at Malmstrom AFB, Great Falls, Mont., and Grand Forks, N.D. That vote was 11 to 5.

An aide to Senator Symington said the committee action would authorize site surveys and land acquisition for the Whiteman ABM complex.

A spokesman for the Army's Safeguard System Command in Huntsville, Ala., told The Democrat-Capital Thursday he considered the action "significant," but added he was not "in a position to say" when the Army might begin actual work on the Whiteman project.

Although the committee approved a $21-billion military buying authorization which gave the Nixon administration almost everything it wanted for major weapons development, it trimmed Safeguard funds slightly and ruled out a start on extending the Washington, D.C., area Safeguard system.

All Safeguard sites are designed to protect land-based Minuteman missile systems.

The committee restored $801.6 million cut out by the House for the Navy's F14 carrier-based fighter interceptor, citing the Pentagon's recommendation the program be carried out and the contractor's statement the funds are sufficient for 48 planes.

The procurement bill, which has precipitated lengthy Senate debates the past two years, will be called up for action in September.

It undoubtedly will attract a number of amendments, aimed at such major weapons programs as the Safeguard and the B1 advanced manned bomber. Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Armed Services Committee predicted it "will have a very rugged trip on the floor."

An aide to Sen. Symington said he will offer two amendments dealing with Laos — one to limit U.S. spending there and another to stop U.S. pay for Thai troops in Laos.

That latter amendment, rejected in committee 11 to 3, is aimed at tightening an antimercenary provision adopted a year ago that prohibits spending U.S. funds for "Vietnamese or other free-world forces in actions designed to provide military support and assistance to the government of Cambodia or Laos." But it permits funds for "local forces in Laos and Thailand."

The administration has interpreted the Thai troops being used in Laos as "local forces" on grounds they are "volunteers" and serving under Laotian command.

Symington and others claim the troops are recruited in Thailand and paid for by the Central Intelligence Agency and that this violates the antimercenary provision.

He sought to redefine "local forces" to include only Thais in Thailand and Laotians in Laos. Only Sens. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, and Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., supported him in committee.

Nixon Says U.S. Troops Only Defending Positions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, announcing the remaining American troops in Vietnam have moved into defensive positions, has, in effect, declared U.S. responsibility for offensive ground-combat operations at an end.

"American forces in Vietnam today, as you can tell from reading the reports, are in defensive positions ... frankly just defending the area in which we have responsibility," Nixon told a news conference Wednesday.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird followed this up a few hours later, saying the President's remarks mean the first phase of the administration's Vietnamization program is "virtually completed."

Administration officials have said repeatedly turning over responsibility for ground-combat operations to the South Vietnamese—phase one of Vietnamization—would come sometime this summer.

American battle deaths, which averaged 60 a week in April, have fallen steadily, to 13 last week and 11 the week before. The level of fighting in Vietnam has dropped noticeably, and it has been several weeks since U.S. troops engaged the enemy in an offensive operation.

About 225,000 GIs and fewer than 30 combat maneuver battalions remain in the war zone, compared to 543,400 troops and 112 maneuver battalions at the peak of the American commitment in April 1969.

Nixon, whose withdrawal timetable calls for the troop level to drop to 184,000 by Dec. 1, will make another pullout announcement in mid-November.

In the news conference, the President avoided saying directly that the U.S. combat role is over. White House officials have acknowledged the definition of "combat role" is extremely complex and for this reason are reluctant to make any flat statement that could shade into ambiguous situations.

Shifting of the U.S. role in Vietnam does not mean an end to American battle deaths. Although GIs will be concerned more and more with protecting the security of their base areas, officials have emphasized they will not remain in static defense positions. They still will go out on base-protecting patrols, for example.

Two Army divisions making up the bulk of the major American ground-combat power left in Vietnam still are positioned in the region below Quang Tri province and could be used to help the South Vietnamese should an enemy offensive develop this summer and early fall. There still is significant airpower available in Vietnam and Thailand and aboard Navy carriers offshore to back up the South Vietnamese.

Defense officials have indicated that by next summer the U.S. presence in Vietnam will have dwindled to a military advisory and security force numbering about 50,000.

Suspect Arraigned On Charge of Rape

A 46-year-old Florence, Mo., man was arraigned in Magistrate Court Thursday morning on a charge of statutory rape and his preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 2.

The charge followed an incident Tuesday afternoon involving a 12-year-old Sedalia girl.

Lawrence P. Sudduth was released Thursday on a $5,000 personal surety bond after being held in the city jail from Tuesday night until Wednesday afternoon for investigation of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The rape charge was filed about 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Sudduth was taken into custody by Sedalia police at 9:09 p.m. Tuesday at Third and Lamine. Police received an earlier report from the girl's sister that the youngster had run away from home.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said the initial investigation led to the suspicion the girl had been sexually molested. She was examined by a physician at Bothwell Hospital late Tuesday night and released. Results of the test confirmed these suspicions, he said.

According to Fairfax, the incident occurred in a field about a half mile south of 42nd and Kentucky Tuesday afternoon.

Financial Snag May Handcuff Commodity Program

By BOB SHEUE
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

JEFFERSON CITY — Sixty-nine Missouri counties, including Pettis, currently receiving a free ride from the federal government for administration and warehousing of local commodity food programs, may have to start footing part of the bill if a projected funding plan by Missouri Director of Welfare Proctor Carter is implemented for fiscal 1972.

The current financial bind in the commodity food program, according to Ray Ferguson, state director of food programs, is mainly due to a reduced appropriation by Congress to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"In fiscal 1971," Ferguson said, "the USDA was granted about $1,600,000 to finance commodity administration and warehousing costs for 69 counties under the program in Missouri."

"Since that appropriation," he explained, "the federal government has requested that every county implement a supplemental food program of some kind. Of Missouri's 114 counties, 104 will now fall under the commodity program funding under state plans with the rest under the food stamp plan."

Ferguson added, however, that the fiscal 1972 appropriation for the state commodity program will be $1,248,220, about $350,000 less than this year and anywhere from $600,000 to $800,000 short of needed funds to provide present services to 104 counties.

The $1,248,220 figure has been approved by the House in a $19,700,000 commodity food program package for all 50 states and territories, Ferguson said, with Senate action expected "any day."

Ferguson said State Welfare Department officials are hopeful Senate action might augment the House grant, but have already devised a plan to make any state funding, which might be necessary to keep commodity programs going, equitable among all counties involved.

Ferguson said 39 counties in the state had in the past operated under the "50-50 plan" whereby county governments paid all initial expenses, and were later reimbursed half that cost by the state.

Under State Welfare Department plans, Ferguson said, those counties which had been supporting their programs, with the exception of four which have been approved for the food stamp plan, would be included under federal funding for commodity plan counties, making 104 counties receiving federal help.

To accomplish this with a smaller grant, Ferguson said, it would be necessary for all county governments to contribute to the financial support of local programs. Ferguson emphasized the State Welfare Department believed this was the only equitable solution to off-set money shortages existing in state and federal governments.

He said that some counties with comparatively smaller budgets had been helping support local programs since 1957 while other richer counties in the state had more recently accepted a free ride by the government.

Pettis County Eastern District Court Judge E. L. "Red" Birdsong, told The Democrat-Capital Thursday the court had no knowledge of the state's intentions, but said that the county probably couldn't support the commodity program here, and hinted that a food stamp approach might be studied as an alternative.

However, a backlog already exists of counties awaiting approval by the state and federal government for the food stamp program. In relation to the backlog, Ferguson said the state would still be required to furnish partial funding for administration of that program.

In mid-January of 1970, the county court met with state welfare officials, who at that time presented a commodity foods program which they said would be of no cost to the county.

Welfare officials added that Nixon administration insistence that every county in the nation have some sort of supplemental food plan resulted in the no-cost offer here. The county had not taken any official action toward acquiring a program at the time of that meeting.

However, an apparent lack of USDA funds, coupled with state intentions to

Gobbledygook Is Growing Concern in Boggling Bureaucracy

AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry B. Quill was a bureaucrat. He wasn't always a bureaucrat, and it took him a while to learn the ways of the maze. Poor, unprepossessing, awkward and tie-ridden, he went to work last year at the Technological Implementation Agency in the Department of Unencumbered Analytical Allocations.

Henry B. Quill is fictitious. So is his agency. But his troubles, his triumphs—and what finally happened to Henry B. Quill—show some very real peculiarities of government bureaucracy and how bureaucracy is creating a billion-dollar problem.

The problem, says a congressional committee, is gobbledygook—a growing glut of government garble galloping out of control, filling millions of cubic feet of government files and helping to cause a paperwork blizzard costing taxpayers $8 billion a year.

Gobbledygook, as defined by an authority, is writing that suffers from a swelling of its parts.

Gobbledygook, says the government, has got to go.

But what that happen, say the bureaucrats, is "more easily promulgated with dynamic confrontational determination than effectuated with maximized definitive success."

Consider, for example, Henry B. Quill.

On his second day of work, in a memo to his boss, Henry suggested, "Let's cut our budget."

"No, no, no, Quill," stormed the boss. "It's not, 'Let's cut our budget.' If you're going to suggest a ridiculous thing like that, at least suggest it in a professional way."

After careful scrutiny of available data, the undersigned cannot fail but to offer as an interim proposal additional study into the possibility of taking such steps as are commensurate with the actual budgetary situation, not in response to an ideal which does not exist, particularly with regard to the need to modify monetary expenditures, but possibly effecting certain economies in the unitization of technological implementation.

"Oh," said Henry. He hauled up his socks, took a deep breath and tried again. He expanded short words into long ones. "Use" into "utilize," "end" into "finalize," and "make" into "fabricate." He multiplied words. "Laws" became "statutory provisions," "after—subsequent to," and "prohibit—mitigate against." And he ballooned words into carefully crafted phrases that took a quiet pride in standing off by themselves and gazing into their own opacity.

Soon he had the knack. "Multivalued decision problems are so common," he wrote, "that the objective and criteria of these decisions are best formulated in a way that takes uncertainty explicitly into account." This can be done, he added, "by subjecting the economic optimum to the restriction of avoiding immoderate possible losses and by minimizing maximum possible losses."

Quill had mastered the mother tongue of government. He smothered his verbs, camouflaged his subjects and hid everything in an undergrowth of modifiers. He braided, beaded and fringed, giving elaborate expression to negligible thoughts, weasling, hedging and announcing the obvious. He spread generalities like flood waters in a long, low valley. He sprinkled everything with aspects, feasibility, alternatives, effectuations, analyses, maximizations, implementations, contraindications and aperturances. At his best, complete immobility set in, lasting sometimes for dozens of pages.

When real bureaucrats do that sort of thing, the pages pile up. A House Post Office and Civil Service subcommittee said four years ago that if one government record were burned each second, it would take 2,000 years to destroy them all. Some 225,000 government employees spend most of their working day tucking documents into 25 million cubic feet of files, the subcommittee said, and the executive offices alone have two million filing cabinets.

The government spends $8 billion a year on paperwork, the subcommittee said, and $1.5 billion of it goes for writing a billion letters a year. The subcommittee said $100 million to $200 million could be saved each year by writing more concisely.

Galloping Garble

James H. Boren runs NATAPROBU — the National Association of Professional Bureaucrats, and he is pictured here in front of the association's official seal. Members' three part philosophy is: "When in charge, ponder; when in trouble, delegate; when in doubt, mumble." The association is run as a lark, but it is very real. So is the problem it spoofs, gobbledygook. A Congressional committee says so, in 220 pages.

(AP)

Not to be lopsided, the subcommittee hailed some "success stories." The Navy and Marine Corps, for instance, have eliminated more than 18,000 internal directives and the Federal Aviation Agency has reduced its files by 5.5 million pages. But the subcommittee report was 70 pages long. And a report by the full committee a year earlier ran to 220 pages. It covered hearings that filled five volumes. The study was aptly entitled "The Federal Paperwork Jungle."

So prolific was Henry B. Quill that before long he was nominated for the highest honor in the National Association of Professional Bureaucrats. "Congratulations!" NATAPROBU told him in a letter. "Your continued efforts toward constructive utilization of prolusionary processes as they fit within the guidelines of the orbital dialogues that contribute to interfering avoidance in decision-making have gained you consideration in our annual selection of nominees for the Order of the Bird."

NATAPROBU, a very real organization, run as a lark by James H. Boren, 45, who worked for nine years as a middle-level official in the Agency for International Development (AID), has a three-part philosophy for its members: "When in charge, ponder; when in trouble, delegate; when in doubt, mumble."

The last was Quill's forte. He was nominated for the "Bird" in keeping with NATAPROBU's aim "to give recognition to articulate fingertappers of the world who, by their steadfast dedication to the principles of dynamic inactivism, have kept things from happening and thereby prevented mistakes from being made."

Other real-life NATAPROBU nominees for the Order of the Bird have been:

—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, "in recognition of his contributions to the state of the communications art and to the orbital prolusionary processes as finalized in direct trajectories." Agnew didn't make it to the banquet the association holds each year, but he wired:

"Rueful regrets, a thousand apologies and prothonotary pretexts to NATAPROBU on this auspicious occasion. Order of Bird eliteratively appreciated, but in all meiotic modesty must recommend others as possessing prolusionary processes more deserving."

—Mayor John Lindsay of New York, for the 56 steps it takes to hire a person in five of the city's agencies and the 71 steps required to purchase such items as a desk for a city office or a truck for the city's fleet. (You think we're kidding, don't you?)

"It appears," wrote Boren, "that no other city in the United States can match the outstanding record of New York in the development of orchestrated procedural clearances and decision avoidance patterns." Replied Robert Laird, a Lindsay aide: "No authorization has been issued for the tendering by your organization of an award to the City of New York. In the absence of such authorization-to-offer-award, form B00-2-U, it would not conform to approved proper procedures for the city to contemplate reception of the Order of the Bird. I might add that there are 82 steps required to obtain form B00-2-U."

—John Brayton Redecker, an official in the Bureau of Inter-American Affairs in the State Department, for a country analysis and strategy paper prepared for a symposium of the Military Operations Research Society in San Diego, Calif., in November, 1969. In a chapter entitled, "The Qualitative Quantitative Interface," Redecker wrote: "Diplomatic initiatives for example, while high-capacity policy instruments, are in no sense resource intensive. Their dollar requirements cannot be meshed with the resources called for by economic assistance programs, for example; although both are palpable instruments for achieving policy objectives and both, of course, have price tags attached to them. One is faced, therefore, with a variety of incommensurable dollars, the summation of which has no practical meaning for defining optimal policy through an evaluation of alternative resource mixes."

Reдекer accepted the "Bird" for all of the "trembling, shining bureaucrats" at the State Department.

Quill was thrilled. He waited anxiously while NATAPROBU's nine coordinating committees considered his nomination. Then a startling thing happened. To his horror, the fictitious Quill discovered that flesh and blood Dean Calvin Linton at George Washington University had written a book for the Internal Revenue Service, saying that a lot of government writing was pretty bad.

In fact, Linton likened it to writing "by a machine—and a somewhat morose one at that." Worse, Quill found out that people like Linton, Lucille Boyd at IRS, Jackie Sutton at the Civil Service Commission, Paul Kunberger at the Pentagon, Sam Bingman at the Interstate Commerce Commission and others at the Veterans Administration, Agriculture Department, General Services Administration and a variety of the departments and agencies around town were changing the style poor Henry had so painstakingly learned.

Not that the problem was peculiar to the U.S. government. Linton was quick to point out that Sir Ernest Gowers, British authority on writing, quotes reports about "a discussion yesterday on the worrying of sheep dogs in the Minister's room" and an "official statement on the marriage of German prisoners with girls made in the House of Commons."

Nor was the problem peculiar to government. Coordinators for the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice talk about "militant and creative nonviolent disobedience." A learned journal says, "Development concepts, whether attuned to current management practices or not, particularly those of an institutional nature, are often applicable to such sociological and economic structures as may be necessary for the establishment of equitable adjustment of all psychic needs in a typical administrative complex."

Nevertheless, it took an official in the government, Linton says, to write a memo saying, "All officers wishing to take advantage of the girls in the secretarial pool should call extension 81." And it took a government personnel officer to write a progress report on a typist saying, "She's willing to struggle if given the opportunity."

The change of style was no small struggle, either. As Walter Salant, authority on writing economics at the Brookings Institution, concedes: "Anyone who writes about writing puts himself in the position of a boxer who leads with his chin." And, sure enough, some of the government pugilists set themselves up for a tap on the jaw.

Brig. Gen. William A. Knowlton, secretary of the Army general staff, for example, instructed writers of correspondence for Chief of Staff William C. Westmoreland to "avoid stock phrases." Then, in the same memo, Knowlton listed 12 stock phrases as "typical expressions of the chief of staff."

Other setbacks came from agency heads themselves. "In some government offices, believe it or not," says Linton, "this exact attitude has been expressed to me: 'If we begin to teach writing and to make a lot of fuss about it, we will, sure as fate, get wild deviations from our standard approved style.' In other words, people will begin to say 'borrow' instead of 'procure on a loan basis'..."

Indeed, no less an authority than George Orwell has said that if the government had written Ecclesiastes, "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong..." would have come out: "Objective consideration of contemporary phenomena compels the conclusion that success or failure in competitive activities exhibits no tendency to be commensurate with innate capacity."

All of this came as a blow to Henry B. Quill. Particularly when he realized that some of the examples the authorities were using to show poor writing were his own. He mustered all of his concentration and set to work unlearning what he had learned.

After months of struggle, he was writing phrases, sentences, even paragraphs as riveting as bank errors in your favor. "Militate against" became "prohibit." "Securing by dishonest means" became "stealing." And "appearing to have encountered a favorable response" became "approved."

"Quill!" shrieked the boss, storming into his office. "What are you doing? You can't write like that around here!"

"But, but, boss..."

"Quill, I believe a termination is in order."

"I'm fired?"

"No, no, no. You're not fired. In the best interests of your career, your services are being dispensed with."

"I believe you hit the nail on the head, sir."

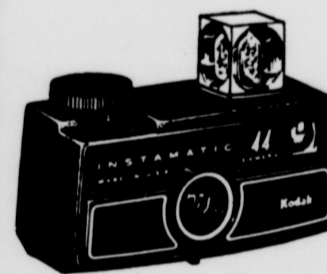

"No, no, no, Quill. I didn't hit the nail on the head. I partook of a manifest relevancy."

"Oh," said Henry B. Quill.
